The Public Bodies (Abolition of Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council) Order 2013

Draft Public Bodies Act Consent Motion

1. The draft motion to be lodged by the Minister for Community Safety and Legal Affairs is:

“That the Parliament consents to the making of the Public Bodies (Abolition of Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council) Order 2013, a draft of which was laid before the United Kingdom Parliament on 18 December 2012 and which makes provision which would be within the legislative competence of the Parliament if it were contained within an Act of that Parliament.”

2. This memorandum has been lodged by the Minister for Community Safety and Legal Affairs in accordance with Standing Orders under Chapter 9BA.

Background

Public Bodies Act 2011

3. The UK Public Bodies Act 2011 (“the 2011 Act”) gives UK Ministers the authority (via order making powers) to abolish, merge or transfer the functions of public bodies listed in its schedules, and some of those bodies operate in both the reserved and devolved areas. Section 9 of the 2011 Act acknowledges the scope for incursion into devolved interests by requiring orders that include provision falling within devolved competence to be consented to by Holyrood.

4. Chapter 9BA of Parliament’s Standing Orders set out the arrangements for handling requests for consent to orders triggering section 9 of the 2011 Act.

The Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council

5. The Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council (AJTC) and its Scottish Committee was established by section 44 of, and Schedule 7 to, the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. It replaced the Council on Tribunals (and its Scottish Committee) which was established by section 1 of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992. The AJTC is specified as a cross border authority by the Scotland Act 1998 (Cross-Border Public Authorities) (Specification) Order 1999 (SI 1999/1319). It provides UK and Scottish Ministers with expert advice on the administrative justice system and performs supervisory functions over specified tribunals, both reserved and devolved.

6. The AJTC, including its Scottish Committee, is to be abolished under provisions included in the 2011 Act. This will, therefore, remove any requirements on the Scottish Ministers to consult with the Scottish Committee of the AJTC before making procedural rules for any of the listed tribunals and will remove any rights of the members of the Scottish Committee to attend their proceedings as an observer.
7. On being consulted in June 2010 on the proposed abolition by Secretary of State for Justice, in advance of the public consultation, the Scottish Ministers raised no objection to the proposal. The Cabinet Secretary for Justice wrote in August 2011 to the Secretary of State, noting that he was content for the AJTC and its Scottish Committee to be abolished, and has been considering what the Scottish Government may wish to put in its place. The Minister for Community Safety wrote to the Justice Committee in September 2012 confirming the Scottish Government’s intention to create a non-statutory advisory committee following abolition as an interim measure to allow consideration of longer-term options.

UK Government reform proposal

8. The UK Government wishes to abolish the AJTC including its Scottish Committee. This is part of their commitment to reduce the number and cost of arms length bodies.

Implications for Scotland

9. Under the UK Government’s reforms, the Scottish Committee of the AJTC would be abolished. This would remove its functions in relation to devolved matters for tribunals listed in the 2007 Order.

Scottish Government position

10. The Scottish Government does not object to the abolition of the AJTC and therefore supports this Order which has been laid before the United Kingdom Government. The Scottish Government considers that, since the Scottish Civil Justice Council and Criminal Legal Assistance Bill, the Tribunals (Scotland) Bill and forthcoming legislation to reform the tribunals landscape will be comprehensively reforming the administrative justice system in Scotland, there is no longer a requirement to retain the supervisory functions of the AJTC.

11. Further, the Scottish Government intends to create an interim non-statutory advisory committee following abolition to provide expert advice to the Scottish Ministers in the context of administrative justice. We are currently working with the Scottish Committee to consider remit, functions and membership. The interim body will allow time for full consideration of longer-term options to support the administrative justice landscape and the new tribunals system in Scotland.
The draft Public Bodies (Abolition of Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council) Order 2013

12. The Ministry of Justice is promoting the AJTC Order under sections 1, 6(1) and (5) and 35(2) of the 2011 Act. A copy of the Order and its accompanying material, as laid at Westminster, is provided at Annex A. The AJTC Order will abolish the AJTC and make consequential amendment to legislation to that effect.

13. As the Order provides for the abolition of the Scottish Committee of the AJTC, it requires the consent of the Scottish Parliament as the relevant provision would be within the legislative competence of the Scottish Parliament if contained in an Act of that Parliament.

Consultation

14. Section 10 of the 2011 Act requires the UK Minister proposing an order to consult on the proposed changes.

15. The UK Government undertook a consultation on the proposals for the abolition of the AJTC. The majority of respondents favoured its retention, arguing that the AJTC’s functions cannot be performed effectively by a Government department. The UK Governments response indicated their intent to proceed with abolition.

Financial / Resource Implications

16. The Scottish Government provide the accommodation of the AJTC’s Scottish Committee. All other operating costs are met from UK funds. The Ministry of Justice has confirmed they will provide £50,000 per annum for the next two years to the Scottish Government to support the work of the new advisory committee.

Conclusion

17. The Scottish Government invites the Parliament to consent to the making of the Public Bodies (Abolition of Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council) Order 2013, a draft of which was laid before the UK Parliament on 18 December 2012.
