How would you characterise your views on the Bill in general?

In support

How would you characterise your views on the introduction of same sex marriage, so that same sex couples can marry each other?

In support

Really, I fail to see any reason for debate here. If two people love each other then they should be free to marry and that's that. How anyone feels they have the right to dictate what is and isn't proper love worth celebrating is beyond me. It's sickening

How would you characterise your views on putting belief celebrants on the same footing as religious celebrants?

In support

How would you characterise your views on the arrangements for authorising celebrants to solemnise opposite sex and same sex marriage (including the opt-in procedures)?

In support

How would you characterise your views on civil partnerships changing to marriages?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing civil marriage ceremonies to take place anywhere, other than religious premises, agreed between the couple and registrar?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing the religious and belief registration of civil partnerships?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing transgender persons to stay married when obtaining a full Gender Recognition Certificate, which provides legal recognition in the acquired gender?

In support

Would you like to comment on the wider issue of protections for those in society who may have concerns about same sex marriage?
To those who have concerns about gay marriage, get a grip. How two people chose to celebrate their love is nobody’s business but their own.

Would you like to comment on the wider issue of freedom of speech?

Freedom of speech is important. And as such, people should be allowed to moan about this bill as much as they want. That does not mean they have the right to be listened to though. I think the majority of Scots in this day and age are very progressive, so

Would you like to comment on any other wider issues in relation to the Bill that are not mentioned above?

Are you responding as...

a private individual

Allan Brown
21 August 2013