How would you characterise your views on the Bill in general?

In support

How would you characterise your views on the introduction of same sex marriage, so that same sex couples can marry each other?

In support

How would you characterise your views on putting belief celebrants on the same footing as religious celebrants?

In support

How would you characterise your views on the arrangements for authorising celebrants to solemnise opposite sex and same sex marriage (including the opt-in procedures)?

In support

How would you characterise your views on civil partnerships changing to marriages?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing civil marriage ceremonies to take place anywhere, other than religious premises, agreed between the couple and registrar?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing the religious and belief registration of civil partnerships?

In support

How would you characterise your views on allowing transgender persons to stay married when obtaining a full Gender Recognition Certificate, which provides legal recognition in the acquired gender?

In support

Would you like to comment on the wider issue of protections for those in society who may have concerns about same sex marriage?

Protections should be in place so that no-one is forced to change a belief that marriage is only between a man and a woman. However, for those providing a public service they should not be able to refuse service to a couple just because they happen to be of the same sex.

Would you like to comment on the wider issue of freedom of speech?

Would you like to comment on any other wider issues in relation to the Bill that are not mentioned above?

The time has come for equal marriage. Opinion polls show consistently that the majority of people are in favour of it. In Scotland, legalising same sex marriage would mean that the Scottish law will catch up to the law of England and Wales.

Are you responding as...

an LGBT group

Matthew Sephton
LGBTory - The Conservative LGBT group
20 August 2013