Legal rights are available to all, whether in civil partnership or marriage.

Marriage can be redefined until the cows come home, but it remains a union between male and female.

How about redefining pregnancy so that men can have babies?

This whole thing is stupid. An apple is not the same as an orange, but they are equal in that they are fruit.

A man is not the same as a woman, but they have equality. Just try to force a priest to conduct a same sex "marriage". The law of the land would be made to look silly.
