I would like to submit comments on Scotland's broadband infrastructure and the negative impact it has in specific areas on businesses - especially small businesses.

The current infrastructure in some central areas, such as the Butterstone exchange, are particularly limiting to local small businesses which are heavily reliant on internet connectivity and communication.

I would be grateful if you could consider how specific local issues such as this antiquated exchange can be addressed in order to encourage small business growth.