Barry Haslam submission of 5 July 2018

My prescribed drug damage was recognised in 1996 by a Tribunal DLA Benefits award and is still current to this day, due to my permanent brain damage caused by excessive amounts of the prescribed benzodiazepine drug Ativan (Lorazepam).

This chemical holocaust has to be urgently recognised and addressed by both the Scottish and English Government.

For decades this medical disaster with the benzodiazepines and SSRI drugs has been swept under the carpet by vested interests,

No more.
