SEAT BELTS ON SCHOOL TRANSPORT (SCOTLAND) BILL

Don’t know if this is relevant but have always thought bus seats should be rear facing, seems natural that a rear facing passenger in a head on collision would be much better protected by the back of the chair stopping themselves flying forward into a hard object. I’m sure there must be data from ‘crash tests’ on rear facing passenger head on collisions, must be a reason it is not used, but can’t think of any negative safety problems from doing this.

Scot Finlayson
March 2017