Update on progress at the meeting on the actions

Objective One: Secure policy change to enable adults to access free dyslexia assessments at the point of contact, regardless of background

Progress Update:

- Dyslexia Scotland, in partnership with the University of Glasgow, published a national report highlighting lived experiences of adults with dyslexia and the barriers to accessing assessment in Scotland.

- The report was raised at First Minister's Questions by Oliver Mundell MSP, drawing attention to inequitable access to free adult assessments.
- A meeting with the First Minister was held to discuss these concerns and explore potential policy options and solutions.

Objective Two: Influence Scottish Government policy and strategy to improve IT support and digital education for dyslexic learners in schools

Progress Update:

- Engagement took place with the LDAN Bill Team to raise concerns around digital accessibility and support for dyslexic pupils.
- A follow-up meeting has been scheduled with the Cabinet Secretary for Education and the Minister for Social Care, Mental Wellbeing and Sport.
- These issues were also raised directly during the meeting with the First Minister.

Proposed Actions:

- Write via COSLA to all local authorities requesting information on current local dyslexia strategies and digital support provision.
- Arrange an MSP visit to CALL Scotland offices to showcase best practice and innovative assistive technology solutions.

28th May

- Presentation from young pupils of Trinity Primary School on the impact of the Edinburgh City Council Literacy project supported by Dyslexia Scotland and Sir Sean Connery Foundation
- Presentation from three adults who have dyslexia on the impact that this has on their everyday life.
- Updates on the meeting with the First Minister, CabSec Education and Minister for Health and Wellbeing.

11th December

- Presentation for Hillary Aitken of Edinburgh City Council on the joint project that has taken place over the last 3 years via support of Sir Sean Connery Foundation and Dyslexia Scotland.
- Discussion on the main areas objectives that had been set in 2024 and agreement on what has to still be taken forward and what is required further action
