FOREWORD

Openness is one of the founding principles of the Scottish Parliament.

Scotland's Parliament should be accessible, open and responsive, and have in place procedures which make it possible for a participative approach to the development, consideration and scrutiny of policy and legislation. Our Parliament already publishes a large proportion of the information it produces. In drawing up this Publication Scheme, we have also had regard to the public interest in the information we hold.

I am keen to ensure that the Parliament continues to operate in this way, though it is right we balance this desire to be open with considerations of operational effectiveness.

I believe the Scheme reflects our commitment to openness. Over time, we hope that the Parliament will be regarded as a leading example and a model Scottish public authority in the way it responds to the freedom of information regime in Scotland.

Alex Fergusson
Presiding Officer

INTRODUCTION

The Scottish Parliament was established under the Scotland Act 1998 (http://www.opsi.gov.uk/acts/acts1998/ukpga_19980046_en_1).

Its main functions are:

- to hold the Scottish Government to account through oral and written questions, and through scrutiny of its policies in the committees;
- to make laws on devolved matters by examining, amending and voting on Bills and to scrutinise subordinate legislation made by the Scottish Ministers;
- to debate important topical issues;
- to conduct inquiries and publish reports.

The Scottish Parliamentary Corporate Body (the SPCB) is responsible for ensuring that the Parliament is provided with the property, staff and services required for the Parliament's purpose. To carry out these functions the SPCB considers and makes decisions on a wide range of issues to do with the running of the Parliament including; the allocation of the budget; staffing; the use and security of parliamentary facilities and the provision of services to MSPs.

The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 requires that the Scottish Parliament and the SPCB produce a Publication Scheme. It is impractical to make a distinction between the information held by the Scottish Parliament and the Scottish Parliamentary Corporate Body and therefore the information contained within this Publication Scheme includes information held by both.

BACKGROUND

The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002

The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (the FOI Act) (http://www.opsi.gov.uk/legislation/scotland/acts2002/asp_20020013_en_1) introduced a statutory right of access by any individual to all types of recorded information held by a wide range of Scottish public authorities. This right of access was brought into force for the Scottish Parliament, the Scottish Government and other Scottish public authorities on 1 January 2005.

The FOI Act is enforced by the Scottish Information Commissioner (www.itspublicknowledge.info). The Commissioner is independent of both the Scottish Parliament and Scottish Government.

The Publication Scheme

Section 23 of the FOI Act places a duty on Scottish public authorities to adopt and maintain a Publication Scheme, which must specify:

- classes of information the authority publishes or intends to publish;
- the manner in which this information will be published; and
- whether the published information will be made available to the public free or on payment of a charge.

A Publication Scheme must be approved by the Commissioner. This Publication Scheme received the approval of the Commissioner on 3rd July 2008 on 3rd July 2008.

The Scheme refers to information which the Parliament and SPCB already publishes or intends to publish. Publish can mean make available to the public in a variety of ways, including: electronically (such as on our website) or hard copy (such as printed leaflets, booklets, brochures or books, etc., videos, DVD, and CD ROMs or other audio or visual recordings, including photographs, etc).

From a practical point of view, in very limited circumstances (e.g. where the information is contained in bulky or voluminous documents) the right of access will be by inspection. Information that can only be accessed by inspection consists of records of old entries in the Register of Members' Interests; lengthy public petitions and very bulky plans and drawings relating to Holyrood which are held in storage. Please see p31 for further information about accessing the Register of Members' Interests.

The 'duty to assist'

Section 15 of the FOI Act places Scottish public authorities under an obligation to provide advice and assistance to a person who proposes to make, or has made, a request for information, so far as it is reasonable to expect it to do so. We will endeavour to help members of the public to make a request and to help those who have made requests to identify and locate the information they are seeking. If the information is otherwise accessible, we will provide advice as to where it may be obtained.

HOW TO USE THIS PUBLICATION SCHEME

The Publication Scheme

Information made generally available under this Scheme is divided into six broad categories:

- Parliamentary Business (What the Scottish Parliament does)
- Procedure (How the Scottish Parliament works)
- Members of the Scottish Parliament (MSPs)

- News, Media and Events
- About the Parliament (Corporate information)

The attached Annex A lists the classes of information available under these categories by describing the information, frequency of publication, where, how or in what format it can be obtained and whether or not there is a charge. Annex B is an A to Z list of these classes.

The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (FOISA) provides you with a right of access to the information we hold subject to certain exemptions. The Environmental Information (Scotland) Regulations 2004 (EIRs) separately provide a right of access to the environmental information we hold, while the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) provides a right of access to any personal information about you that we hold. These rights are subject to certain exemptions.

General information and environmental information requests :

We are not obliged to respond to general requests which cost more than £600 to process. In the case of requests for environmental information, where it would cost more than £600 to provide the information to you, we will ask you to pay the full cost of providing the information, with no waiver for any portion of the cost.

In calculating any fee, staff time will be calculated at actual cost per staff member hourly salary rate to a maximum of £15 per person per hour and charges may be made for locating, retrieving and providing information.
