Motions and amendments can be published with symbols:

- * before the number indicates publication for the first time
- *...* around a section of text indicates changes to previously published material

The Parliamentary Bureau periodically deletes motions or amendments that are over six weeks old and not scheduled for debate.

Questions regarding this section should be directed to the Chamber Desk.

Members' Business motions that have not achieved cross party support

*S5M-00416 Elaine Smith: National Breastfeeding Week—That the Parliament notes National Breastfeeding Week, which will run from 21 to 28 June 2016; understands that this celebration is an opportunity for mothers and breastfeeding support staff to publicly support breastfeeding and its benefits; recognises that the theme of this year's celebrations will be focussed on a commitment to helping every child get the best possible start in life; notes that this theme promotes an overarching goal to connect the breastfeeding movement to a variety of development issues worldwide; believes that breastfeeding brings a number of health benefits to both mother and child; considers that the Scottish Government is aware of the challenge to build confidence in breastfeeding among the public and new families; believes that the provisions of the Breastfeeding etc. (Scotland) Act 2005 help to achieve this and that it should be promoted, and hopes that all events taking place during National Breastfeeding Week are successful. R

Other new and altered motions and amendments

*S5M-00417 Richard Lochhead: Congratulations to Lucy Lintott—That the Parliament congratulates Lucy Lintott from Garmouth in Moray on winning both the Charity Champion Award and the People's Choice Award at the SCVO Scottish Charity Awards 2016, which were held on 9 June; recognises that Lucy started Lucy's Fight to share her experience of motor neurone disease (MND) in an honest and brave way; believes that the 21-year-old has achieved an incredible amount, having raised over £100,000 for MND Scotland, walked the Speyside Way, scuba dived and spoken in front of an audience of over 1,000 people, and considers Lucy to be an absolute inspiration who deserves this recognition.

Supported by: Bill Kidd*, Kenneth Gibson*, Jackie Baillie*, Stuart McMillan*, Douglas Ross*, Mairi Evans*, Christina McKelvie*, Joan McAlpine*

*S5M-00415 Bill Kidd: Commitment to Shipyard Workers on the Clyde—That the Parliament expresses concern at delays to the Type 26 frigates set to be built on the Clyde; understands that the UK Government originally promised in 2014 that an order of 13 Type 26 frigates would be built before reducing this number to eight; considers that further delays to steel being cut on these frigates would be completely unacceptable and puts jobs at risk, and calls on the UK Government to honour its commitment to the workers on the Clyde in full.

*S5M-00414 Edward Mountain: Donald Dewar Memorial Debate Competition—That the Parliament congratulates both Caitlin Sherrett and Finlay Allmond from the Nairn Academy debating team on winning the 2016 Donald Dewar Memorial Debate Competition; notes that the final was held in the Parliament under the watchful eye of the Deputy Presiding Officer, Linda Fabiani and that 128 teams, 256 pupils, from across Scotland entered the competition, which was run by the Law Society of Scotland; notes that the finalists also included the Royal High School (Edinburgh), Braes High School (Falkirk East) and St Maurice's High School (Cumbernauld), and considers that the standard of debate was excellent and a credit to all involved.

*S5M-00413 Neil Findlay: Time for Change at Sports Direct—That the Parliament is appalled by the reported "culture of fear" and "Victorian-era" work practices operated by Sports Direct, which is owned by Mike Ashley; is shocked by the revelations that practices at the company's locations are believed to have included incidences of non-payment of the minimum wage, the use of a "six strikes and you're out" mechanism, wage deductions for being late, prolonged security searches of staff, charges and cash withdrawal deductions for using pre-paid debit cards for the payment of wages, sexual harassment, the widespread use of agency labour and zero-hour contracts, unpaid training, significant health and safety issues, which include a case of an employee giving birth in a workplace toilet after having allegedly been refused permission to go home following reporting to managers that she was feeling ill, and overly-restrictive work breaks, including toilet breaks; understands that the company refuses to genuinely engage with Unite the Union, which represents many of the staff and the agency workers that it employs; applauds the union, and community and youth activists, on organising protests at several of the business's locations in Scotland to highlight and oppose what it sees as the exploitation of workers on zero-hours contracts; believes that trade union-organised workplaces are healthier, safer and happier; further believes that Unite the Union should have a right of access to organise in and inspect Sports Direct's workplaces, and calls on Mr Ashley and the company to end the use of what it sees as unacceptable working practices, fully recognise Unite the Union as a representative of the workers and to engage with it to improve the wages, health and safety and terms and conditions at all Sports Direct's locations in Scotland and across the UK. R

Supported by: Jackie Baillie*

*S5M-00412 Jackson Carlaw: Jewish Objects for Education in Scotland—That the Parliament applauds the proactive approach of the Jewish Objects for Education in Scotland boxes (JOES Boxes) initiative; notes that the educational resource was helped into action by Zoe Jacobs, who serves as education and community development worker with the Scottish Council of Jewish Communities, and the rest of the team; understands that the initiative involves the boxes, which can include a tallit and siddur among other things, being provided to schools to help stimulate interest about Judaism and the Scottish Jewish community; believes that this positive engagement is a helpful means to engage with people in Scotland from a young age to help further religious understanding, especially in communities with a small Jewish community, and hopes that such engagement from an early age can help to further understanding and minimise religious hatred.

Supported by: Liz Smith*, Alison Harris*, Peter Chapman*, Michael Russell*, Alexander Burnett*, Miles Briggs*, Kenneth Gibson*, Adam Tomkins*, Douglas Ross*, Murdo Fraser*, Jeremy Balfour*, Ross Greer*, Margaret Mitchell*, Bob Doris*, Bill Kidd*, Neil Findlay*, Jackie Baillie*

*S5M-00410 Alex Cole-Hamilton: Public Transport in Communities—That the Parliament acknowledges the importance of public transport in all Scottish communities; acknowledges that increased use of public transport helps the environment as well as provides a lifeline service to those who cannot drive, are ill or elderly; regrets the decision by the City of Edinburgh Council to end the subsidy for the number 64 bus service, which was operated by E&M Horsburgh Ltd; considers that this bus service provided an important transport link for communities in Cramond and East Craigs with South Gyle, and hopes that an alternative solution can be found in order to help the residents there.

Supported by: Neil Findlay*

*S5M-00409 Pauline McNeill: Glasgow Shopping and Nightlife Economy—That the Parliament welcomes the study carried out by Glasgow Caledonian University, commissioned by Glasgow Chamber of Commerce on behalf of Glasgow City Council on shopping and the nighttime economy; notes that the study, which is the first of its kind, found that the retail sector generates £3.3 billion and supports 17,000 jobs annually while the nighttime economy generates £2.16 billion and supports 16,200 jobs annually; recognises the importance of these sectors to the success and prosperity of Glasgow and the need for that prosperity to benefit everyone in Glasgow, and understands the importance of investment in appropriate infrastructure to ensure that this success is shared among all the citizens of Glasgow.
