4. NHS Research Scotland Musculoskeletal Inaugural Research Meeting on 13 March 2019

Professor Stuart Ralston Arthritis Research UK Professor of Rheumatology, Centre for Genomic and Experimental Medicine, Institute of Genetics and Molecular Medicine, University of Edinburgh.

Professor Ralston was invited to summarise the current position re MSK research in Scotland, outcomes from this inaugural meeting and looking to the future.

CPG presentation 13 March Professor Stuart Ralston.pptx

Lynn Laidlaw, who had attended the inaugural meeting indicated that a Musculoskeletal Network was also to be set up to reflect public and patient involvement.

Professor Colin Howie remarked on how currently the James Lind Alliance helps with grant awards and would this new group continue to use the Alliance? (for information-The James Lind Alliance is a non-profit making initiative established in 2004 bringing patients, carers and clinicians together in Priority Setting Partnerships (PSPs) to identify and prioritise the unanswered questions or evidence uncertainties that they agree are the most important).

Joan Kerr questioned how to contact /involve individuals as representatives if they were not part of a membership organisation?

Sheila Macleod, National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society questioned how patients become engaged and motivated to be involved?

Convenor, Brian Whittle MSP, reflected on how so much research gets done but implementation remains poor-for example support for implementation of SIGN guidelines throughout Scotland.

Dr Ann McEntegart highlighted the situation around costs of prescribing biosimilars but the lack of staff as a resource to support that change.

Professor Ralston agreed that more work needs to be done.

5. Physiotherapy in Scotland, growing the workforce and transforming care.

Physiotherapy in Scotland CPG 13 March 2019 Kerriyck Lloyd-Jones.pptx

In summary, The Chartered Society of Physiotherapists Scotland are calling for the Scottish Government to fund an increase in the supply of physiotherapy graduates in Scotland - to fill predicted physiotherapy vacancies in NHS Scotland. Current estimates have identified a need for an additional 90 to 100 additional physiotherapy training places across Scotland, based on workforce demand modelling and current levels of expansion in primary care. This would still be a very modest intervention in terms of costs and administration, compared with published plans for commissioned places of additional medical and nurses training places in Scotland. This would support the current shift in balance of care in Scottish primary care provision.

There was considerable discussion around the current position with regard to training of physiotherapists, looking to future need and poor provision of funding support.
• Course are oversubscribed—10 applicants for every place
• The enhanced role of the physiotherapist is essential as a member of the multidisciplinary team in primary care.
• It takes 7–10 years for a physiotherapist to achieve a band 7/8 post.
• Convenor Brian Whittle MSP highlighted that the training period is the same as 2 terms of Parliament.

What is needing to be done to supply the services/adjust the system?
• Proper workforce planning
• Workload measurement
• Information from the Scottish Government
• Perhaps Research could help to shape Policy?

6. Any other business
• Convenor -Update on the Scottish Government’s plans for delivery of the devolved benefits, including the devolved disability and carer benefits –letter received from Shirley Anne Somerville MSP. Cabinet Secretary for Social Security and Older People- Convenor will update further at our September 2019 meeting

7. Convenor thanked both speakers for such excellent, informative presentations and all members and guests for contributing to the –as usual- lively discussions which followed.

Date of next CPG meeting is Wednesday 11 September 2019 at 6pm—which will also include the Annual General Meeting
