Scottish Parliament translation guidelines:

Gaelic Orthographic Conventions

All translators should follow the most recent version of the Gaelic Orthographic Conventions:

https://www.sqa.org.uk/sqa/45356.html

Stiùireadh Gràmair

The LEACAG grammar guidance produced for Bòrd na Gàidhlig is available at:

https://dasg.ac.uk/grammar/

A range of other translation and language resources are available at:

https://parliament.scot/gd/visitandlearn/40900.aspx

Spellcheckers

Translators should consider using Gaelic spell checkers which can be downloaded free of charge for use:

http://www.igaidhlig.net/en/category/spellchecking/
http://www.smo.uhi.ac.uk/gaidhlig/wentworth/litreachadh/english.html

Name of the Scottish Parliament

The Gaelic name for the Scottish Parliament is Pàrlamaid na h-Alba and this should always be used.

A’ Phàrlamaid Albannach, Pàrlamaid Alba and any other variants should never be used.

Prepositions:

- Avoid double use of the article. Use mun Ghàidhlig, don tràigh etc rather than mun a’ Ghàidhlig, don an tràigh etc.
- When using do and de before a noun beginning with a vowel, dh’ should be inserted. (Do dh’Alba, de dh’achd, etc).

Is / ’S / Agus

To avoid confusion:

- Is e or ’s e should be used for the copula.
- Is should be used as the short form for agus.

Apostrophes
When using apostrophes in the copula (‘s e) or in verbal nouns (a’ déanamh) etc, smart quotes should be used and apostrophes should be those shown here shaped like the number 9 and NOT those shaped like the number 6.

- ‘S e – correct
- ‘S e – incorrect

Ampersands

Ampersands (&) should not be used. Agus or is or the character ʔ (the Gaelic ampersand) should be used instead.

Vowels

Where one word ends with a vowel and the following word begins with a vowel, the words should be written in full. Vowels should not be replaced with an apostrophe. E.g. bliadhna ùr / baile ùr / tha mi an dòchas NOT bliadhn’ ùr, bail’ ùr, tha mi ‘n dòchas etc.

Language names:

Regular names: Welsh, French / the Welsh language, French language, etc should be translated as Cuimris/a’ Chuimris, Fraingis/an Fraingis etc and NEVER as Cuimreach / cânain na Cuimrigh / cânain na Cuimris etc

Irregular language names:

- “The Gaelic language” should be translated as Gàidhlig / a’ Ghàidhlig, NOT as a’ chànan Ghàidhlig or cânain na Gàidhlig etc. e.g. Gaelic Language Act = Achd na Gàidhlig.
- “The English language” should be translated as Beurla / a’ Bheurla, NOT as a’ chànan Bheurla or cânain na Beurla etc.
- “The Scots language” should be translated as a’ Bheurla Ghallda or Scots, NOT as Albaí, a’ chànan Albannach etc.
- “The Irish language”, Irish or Irish Gaelic should be translated as Gaeilge or Gàidhlig na h-Éireann.

Place-names:

All Scottish place names should be translated where possible. Uncertain or obscure place names may be glossed or left in English.

Translators should use the versions of place-names recommended in the Ainmean-àite na h-Alba database. If the name in question is not on the database, the translator can leave the name in English or provide a Gaelic name from another reliable source. If the translator flags up a word not in the Ainmean-àite na h-Alba database with the Gaelic team, we can send this to AAA for translation so that it will appear in the database in future.

\[Dùn \ Èideann\] = genitive is \[Dhùn \ Èideann\] (not \[Dhùn \ Èidinn\]).

\[Alba\] = \[Alba\] should be used as dative and \[na h-Alba\] as genitive.

Names outwith Scotland:

England: London (\[Lunnainn\]), Newcastle (\[An \ Caisteal \ Nuadh\]), Berwick (\[Bearaig\]) should be translated. All other names should be left as in English.

Ireland: names should appear in Irish if translator wishes to use the Irish version of the names. For common names known by most Scottish Gaelic speakers (\[e.g \ Baile \ Átha \ Cliath/Beál \ Feirste/Doire\] etc) the name can appear in Irish only. For names less commonly recognised in Scotland, the name should be written in Irish with the name in English afterwards in brackets (\[e.g. \ Loch \ Garman\] [Wexford]). The best source of Irish Placenames is www.logainm.ie:

Some common examples are: Dublin = \[Baile \ Átha \ Cliath\], Belfast = \[Beál \ Feirste\], Derry/Londonderry = \[Doire\], Cork = \[Corcaigh\], Galway = \[Gaillimh\], Limerick = \[Luimneach\].

For Ireland, \[Èirinn\] should be used as nominative and dative and \[na h-Èireann\] should be used as genitive.

Country names: should be translated where possible. The country names used in the Stòrlann map for schools are available at: http://www.anseotal.org.uk but these are sometimes inconsistent so translators should exercise their own discretion.

Postal addresses should be translated where possible. Street names can be wholly or partly left in English if difficult to translate

Personal names:

For other people, use Gaelic version of both first names and surnames if these are easily recognisable to Gaelic speakers. The translator should use their own discretion on this.

Organisation names:
If a group has a Gaelic version of its name which it uses (e.g. Foghlam Alba, Comhairle na Gàidhealtachd) this should be used. If the group doesn’t have an official Gaelic version of its name, names can be translated if easy to understand but can be left in English if not. The translators should use their own discretion on this.

Committee names:

Acronyms:

Acronyms should be left in English normally unless there is a commonly used Gaelic acronym in use for the group/concept in question. (E.g., BBC and NHS should be left as BBC and NHS). Where the acronym is not well known in either Gaelic or English, it may be better to use the full name in Gaelic rather than using the acronym (e.g. if translating about Historic Environment Scotland, Àrainneachd Eachdraidheil Alba could be written in full each time it appears rather than the acronym HES).

BPA should be used for MSP.

Legislation names:

When translating the annual report, the previous year’s annual report is a good source of the Gaelic names of bills and acts as many pieces of legislation will have been before the Parliament in the previous year.

https://www.parliament.scot/abouttheparliament/46931.aspx

The names of most pieces of Scottish Parliament legislation are available in Am Faclair Beag.

Alphabetical order:

Where lists are in alphabetical order in English, these should normally be put into Gaelic alphabetical order. If in doubt, contact the Gaelic service.

Tu / Sibh: Second person singular

The tu form should normally be used rather than the sibh form for the second person singular. The exception to this would be in translating direct speech where sibh would normally be more appropriate.

Language specific text:

If text in materials such as school quizzes or worksheets is dependent on puns, sounds of words etc, this should not be directly translated from English but adapted to fit the Gaelic situation. If in doubt, contact the Gaelic service.
Glosses:

If a term is particularly difficult to translate and may be difficult for readers to understand, feel free to use English glosses in brackets after the Gaelic.

Hyperlinks:

Please translate the names of the links but leave the links themselves intact. Use right click and ‘edit hyperlink’ to change the name of the link.

Difficult terms:

• Government – where this means the Government or local government etc, riaghaltas should be used. When it means governing (e.g. “the system of government”, “taking part in the government of the country”) riaghladh should be used.

• Concern – where this is used in the sense “issues that concern us”, dragh or iomagain should not be used as concern here means issues in which people have an interest and not issues which worry them. (“Cuisean anns a bheil ùidh againn” or “cuisean a bheir buaidh oirnn” etc).

• Develop – leasaich should only be used for the development of things which already exist. Where develop means to create something new, (e.g. the Committee has developed proposals), something else should be used (e.g. dèan, cur ri chèile, cruthaich, sgrìobh etc).

• Accountable – “a’ toirt gu dìoladh” should be avoided for “holding that the Government is accountable” as it has a negative connotation with the suggestion being that the Government is being held accountable for wrongdoing. Instead “a’ cumail cunntachail” or something similar should be used.

• Organisation – “eagrachadh” should not be used to mean a group or organisation. It should only be used to mean the way in which a group is organised (i.e. to describe the structure of a group).

Latha / Là

Latha should always be used for day.

Assistance:

Contact Mark Neilly or Alasdair MacCaluim at the Gaelic service if you have any questions. We’re happy to help. 0131 348 5395 gaidhlig@parliament.scot; www.parlamaid-alba.org