EXPLANATORY NOTES

INTRODUCTION

2. These Explanatory Notes have been prepared by the Scottish Government to assist the reader of the Bill and to help inform debate on it. They do not form part of the Bill and have not been endorsed by the Parliament.

3. The Notes should be read in conjunction with the Bill. They are not, and are not meant to be, a comprehensive description of the Bill. So where a section or schedule, or a part of a section or schedule, does not seem to require any explanation or comment, none is given.

SUMMARY AND BACKGROUND

4. The Long Leases (Scotland) Bill converts ultra-long leases into ownership. For the purposes of the Bill, “ultra-long leases” are leases that were let for over 175 years and that have over 100 years left to run from the appointed day laid down in the Bill. Under the Bill, compensatory and additional payments are payable by tenants to landlords. Some leasehold conditions are preserved and become real burdens in the title deeds. Landlords are also able to preserve sporting rights.

5. The Bill follows a report by the Scottish Law Commission\(^1\) published in December 2006 and a Scottish Government consultation\(^2\) published in March 2010.

OVERVIEW OF BILL

7. Part 2 covers conversion of certain leasehold conditions to real burdens.

8. Part 3 covers compensation for loss of landlord’s rights.

10. Part 5 covers general and miscellaneous matters.

PART 1: CONVERSION OF LONG LEASE TO OWNERSHIP

Overview of Part 1 of the Bill

11. Part 1 lays down which leases are eligible for conversion to ownership under the Bill; which rights are extinguished and which continue and contains provisions enabling landlords to preserve sporting rights in relation to game and fishing.

Determination of “qualifying lease”

Section 1: Determination of “qualifying lease”

12. This section provides a definition of “qualifying lease” for the purposes of converting to ownership. Under subsections (3) and (4), a lease is “qualifying” if:

- it is registered in the Sasines Register or the Land Register maintained by Registers of Scotland; and
- it was granted for more than 175 years and has more than 100 years left to run from the appointed day laid down in the Bill; and
- the annual rent does not exceed £100; and
- it was not granted for the sole purpose of granting access for pipes and cables; and
- it is not a lease of minerals or a lease containing minerals in which some payment is determined in relation to the exploitation of the minerals.

13. Provision is made in section 63 for the registration of unregistered ultra-long leases. These are then treated under the Bill as “exempt leases” and provision is made in section 65 for the tenant to recall the exemption. Such leases then become eligible for conversion to ownership.

14. Subsection (6) provides that leases which have been divided are to be treated as separate leases.

Section 2: Only one lease is qualifying lease

15. This section sets out rules where land is subject to two or more leases which satisfy the requirements in section 1.

16. If land has been sublet, the sublease too might fulfil the criteria for conversion. The intention is that the last lease should qualify for conversion. If the sublease affects only part of the land originally leased, conversion would apply to this part and the head lease would be the qualifying lease for the remaining part. For example, if A, the owner of land, leases 10 hectares to B for 999 years and B in turn sublets 4 of these hectares to C for 920 years, C is the qualifying tenant in relation to the 4 hectares and B in relation to the remaining 6 hectares.
Conversion of right of lease to ownership

Section 3: Conversion of right of lease to right of ownership

17. Under this section, the conversion of qualifying leases to ownership is automatic, unless the tenant chooses to opt out under Part 4 of the Bill. Conversion happens on the “appointed day”. The “appointed day” is defined in section 67 although this definition does not apply when a tenant of a lease recalls an exemption from conversion (see section 65(3)).

Consequences of conversion

Section 4: Extinction of certain rights and obligations

18. Subsection (1) extinguishes all rights and obligations arising from the qualifying lease and any superior lease. The rights and obligations may be set out expressly in a deed or be implied by virtue of the landlord and tenant relationship. There is a saving for any rights or obligations that survive the appointed day in one form or another under sections 5 and 6 and Part 2.

19. Subsection (2) provides an exception for personal rights and obligations.

20. Subsection (3) makes it clear that the obligation to pay rent for any period before the appointed day remains enforceable.

21. Subsection (4) prevents any proceedings being raised or continued after the appointed day for the enforcement of any rights and obligations extinguished by subsection (1). It does not matter that the breach occurred before the appointed day. Any decree or interlocutor already pronounced does not survive the appointed day. For instance, an interdict enforcing a use restriction would cease to apply.

22. Subsection (5) provides that subsection (4) does not apply to rights and obligations which survive the appointed day under sections 5 and 6 and Part 2. It will also remain possible after the appointed day to enforce a right to recover damages or a right to the payment of money (such as unpaid rent due before the appointed day). Subsection (5) further provides that subsection (4) does not apply to a right of irritancy. (“Irritancy” means a landlord’s right to terminate a lease). Section 70 contains specific provision on the extinction of right of irritancy in certain leases.

Section 5: Subordinate real rights, reservations and pertinents

23. This section sets out the subordinate real rights and encumbrances that burden the right of ownership of the converted land from the appointed day. It also makes provision in respect of pertinents (matters belonging to the lease) and reservations (matters excluded from the lease). In this section “converted land” is the land in which a right of ownership is created through the conversion of a qualifying lease under section 3(1)(a).

24. Subsection (2) lays down that on the appointed day subordinate real rights over the qualifying lease (such as a standard security or a mortgage) become subordinate real rights over the right of ownership.
25. Subsections (3) and (4) provide that the right of ownership created under section 3 is subject to any encumbrances and subordinate real rights, other than heritable securities, proper liferents (a right to use and enjoy a thing during life) or any superior leases, which burdened the head landlord’s ownership immediately before the appointed day. Servitudes, real burdens, and public rights of way, for example, will all continue. Subsection (4) does not affect the personal obligation of the debtor under the heritable security.

26. Subsection (5) defines the extent of the converted land by reference to pertinents and reservations of the lease. On the appointed day, a pertinent of the qualifying lease becomes a pertinent of the converted land provided that it is of a type that is recognised as a pertinent of land. Excluded from the converted land is anything reserved from the qualifying lease (or any superior lease), provided that it is capable of being held as a separate tenement in land (i.e. capable of being owned separately). If the reservation is not capable of being held as a separate tenement, it is disregarded on conversion and forms part of the converted land.

27. The main example of a reservation is a minerals reservation. Where the minerals are not already separate tenements, they become separate tenements on the appointed day when ownership of the surface is separated from ownership of the minerals. The reservation clause will continue to regulate the relationship between the owner of the minerals (the former landlord) and the owner of the surface (the former tenant).

28. Subsection (5) interacts with section 7. Under section 7 a notice may be registered converting reserved sporting rights into a separate tenement. If a notice is registered, the sporting rights will not form part of the converted land. If a notice is not registered, the converted land will include the sporting rights. If such rights have been leased out separately, the lease in question is not affected by conversion of the qualifying lease but there would be a change of landlord.

Section 6: Creation of servitudes on conversion

29. The effect of this section is to create those servitudes (e.g. rights of access over neighbouring land to maintain a water supply or a drainage pipe) which would have been created (whether expressly, impliedly or by positive prescription) had the deeds referred to been a conveyance of land leading to separation of ownership.

30. The deeds referred to are the qualifying lease, any lease higher in the hierarchy of leases (where there is such a hierarchy), or any partial assignation relating to the qualifying lease. The latter, for example, covers the case where a single lease is divided into two by assignation. The assignation may include rights and obligations which affect the part of the lease that is assigned and also the part that is retained.

Section 7: Conversion of reserved sporting rights

31. This section provides for landlords to preserve sporting rights: i.e. rights to game and to fish.

32. Section 7 does not apply to exclusive rights to fish for salmon. Exclusive rights to fish for salmon are separate tenements in land: i.e. they are capable of being owned separately from the land or river in which they subsist. This means that either exclusive rights to fish for salmon are included in the qualifying lease or they are not. Given this, no special provisions are required for exclusive rights to fish salmon.

33. Subsection (2) provides for the execution and registration of a notice by the landlord.

34. Subsection (3) sets out requirements as to the content of the notice. This includes the terms of any counter-obligation to the right.

35. Under subsection (4), registration can be either against the interest of the landlord (i.e. the owner of the land) or the tenant of the qualifying lease.

36. Subsections (5) and (6) provide that the notice must be sworn or affirmed before a notary public. In the normal case this must be done personally by the landlord but some exceptions are set out in subsection (6). Subsection (6)(a)(ii) must be read with Schedule 2 to the Requirements of Writing (Scotland) Act 1995, which identifies who may sign on behalf of companies and other juristic persons.

37. Subsection (7) converts the sporting right into a separate tenement on the appointed day provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and the right is still enforceable. It also prescribes the content of the separate tenement.

38. Where the right has been expressly reserved in the lease, the operation of subsection (7) clarifies the types of game which may be included in the right to take game. First of all, it comprises the rights and obligations set out in the lease in question. Secondly, insofar as consistent with those express rights etc, it comprises, in the case of game, an exclusive right to take hares, pheasants, partridges, grouse and ptarmigan, and, in the case of fishing, an exclusive right to fish for freshwater fish. Freshwater fish is defined in section 77. The definition mirrors that in section 69(1) of the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries (Consolidation) (Scotland) Act 2003.

39. Subsection (8) qualifies subsection (7) by providing that any exclusive right to game is subject to the right of the occupier under the Ground Game Act 1880 to take or kill hares and rabbits.

40. Subsection (9) provides that the separate tenement continues to be subject to any existing counter-obligation. It also provides that a counter-obligation is extinguished on the extinction of the right.

41. Subsection (10), as read with the definition of landlord in section 77, makes clear that only the owner of the land can serve a notice converting the right into a separate tenement. Where the right is held in common each co-owner must sign the notice.

42. The section is subject to section 72 which deals with service of notices.

Section 8: Further provision for section 7

43. Subsection (1) provides that where a right affects more than one qualifying lease a landlord has to register a separate notice in respect of each lease. However, where the same qualifying lease is affected by different rights subsection (2) allows one notice to be used.
PART 2: CONVERSION OF CERTAIN LEASEHOLD CONDITIONS TO REAL BURDENS

Overview of Part 2 of the Bill

44. Part 2 provides a scheme for the conversion of certain leasehold conditions into real burdens. Once the conditions have been converted they become subject to the law on real burdens. The law on real burdens is primarily contained in the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003. Section 1 of the 2003 Act outlines what real burdens are. Generally, a real burden is an encumbrance on land constituted in favour of the owner of other land in that person’s capacity as owner of that other land. However, personal real burdens are burdens constituted in favour of a person other than by reference to the person’s capacity as owner of any land.

Determination of “qualifying conditions”

Section 9: Qualifying conditions

45. This section identifies the criteria that must be met for a leasehold condition to qualify for conversion to a real burden. The section should be read with section 10. The effect of the two sections is that the leasehold condition must be capable of being constituted as a real burden under the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

46. Subsection (1)(a), along with subsection (2), requires the condition to be set out in certain deeds. An interposed lease is specifically excluded from the list of constitutive deeds.

47. Subsection (1)(b) requires the condition to be binding on successors.

48. Subsection (1)(c), along with subsection (3), sets out certain requirements as to the content of the condition. Subsection (4) is an aid to interpretation. Whether a leasehold condition complies with subsection (3) will be judged by the effect of the words and not merely by their form.

49. Subsection (5) sets out some exclusions. Obligations to pay rent and restrictions on assignation and subletting are based on the relationship of landlord and tenant and therefore cannot be converted. Rights of irritancy (to terminate a lease) and penalty clauses (monetary penalties if lease conditions are not complied with) are also excluded. However, rights of pre-emption (a right to acquire certain property in preference to any other person), redemption (a right to buy back) or reversion (right to retake possession) may be capable of conversion.

Section 10: Restriction on conversion of qualifying conditions

50. The effect of this section is that a condition which becomes a qualifying condition must comply with section 3 of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 for it to be validly converted into a real burden. Section 3 of the 2003 Act provides rules as to the content of a real burden. It must, for instance, relate directly or indirectly to the burdened property and it must not be contrary to public policy.

51. Section 3(5) of the 2003 Act which prohibits the creation of new rights of redemption is excluded as it would otherwise prevent the conversion of a qualifying condition having the effect of a redemption or reversion.
Section 11: Meaning of “qualifying land”

52. This section defines the term “qualifying land”.

Section 12: Determination of who may enforce condition

53. The notice procedure introduced by sections 13 to 28 for converting a qualifying condition into a real burden can only be used by a person who has the right to enforce the qualifying condition. Section 12 sets out some rules on who can enforce a qualifying condition.

54. Subsection (2) provides that a person who has not completed title to the property to which the right to enforce a qualifying condition attaches has the right to enforce the condition. Where more than one person comes within that description then only the person with the latest right to the property may enforce it.

55. Subsection (3) provides that where a lease has been partially assigned, the tenant or subtenant of the retained part of the lease can enforce conditions imposed in the assignation or related deed. Such a person can then serve a notice under sections 13, 16, and 23 to 28. The reference to a deed registered under section 3 of the Registration of Leases (Scotland) Act 1857 includes a deed of conditions registered under the old section 3(5) of the 1857 Act which was repealed and replaced by the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 (section 128, schedule 14 paragraph 1, and schedule 15).

56. Subsection (4) defines “entitled person” for the purposes of sections 13 to 20. The definition recognises that third parties may have a right to enforce a qualifying condition.

57. Subsection (5) sets out rules, for the purposes of sections 13 to 20, for the situation where a right to enforce is held by more than one person pro indiviso (pro indiviso property or land is owned by several persons in common). If the right to enforce is held in the capacity of landlord, all pro indiviso landlords have to act together. In a section 13 case, for example, they must all be parties to the notice and they must all own the land to be nominated as a benefited property. If the right to enforce is held by a third party, a pro indiviso holder of the right can act alone but the effect is to convert the condition into a real burden for the benefit of all pro indiviso holders.

Section 13: Conversion by nomination of benefited property

58. This section allows a person with a right to enforce a qualifying condition (the “entitled person”) to convert the condition into a real burden in favour of neighbouring land. “Entitled person” is defined in section 12(4). The entitled person is usually the landlord (of the qualifying lease or a superior lease) but in some circumstances is a neighbour.

59. Subsections (1) and (2) provide that where a conversion condition set out in subsection 4 is met, or the Lands Tribunal for Scotland makes an order under section 20, an entitled person may prospectively convert a qualifying condition into a real burden by executing and registering a notice.

60. Subsection (3) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (h)) is made in section 34.
61. Subsections (5) and (6) determine what land may be nominated by an entitled person as a benefited property. In the majority of cases the entitled person is the landlord. In such a case, the land to be nominated as the benefited property is land which either:

- the landlord owns and which is not subject to a qualifying or exempt lease; or
- land which the landlord is tenant of under a qualifying or exempt lease.

62. In the case of third parties, the land which may be nominated as a benefited property is that land to which the right to enforce attaches (whether to the ownership of that land or to the tenant’s interest under a lease of that land). In the latter case the tenancy under an ultra-long lease qualifies as ownership for the purposes of nominating the benefited property.

63. For example, A is the tenant of a qualifying lease and has assigned the lease in part to B, imposing a qualifying condition. Section 12(3) makes it clear that A has the right to enforce that condition and section 12(4) provides that A is an entitled person for the purposes of section 13.

64. To convert the qualifying condition, A has to serve a notice nominating land as the prospective benefited property. The land to be nominated as the benefited property has to satisfy section 13(5) as read with section 13(6) given that A is not a landlord. In other words, if the land to be nominated is subject to a qualifying or exempt lease, the entitled person has not only to be the tenant of that lease (subsection (5)) but also that lease has to be the lease to which the entitlement to enforce the condition attaches (by virtue of subsection (6)).

65. Section 32 deals with cases where a qualifying condition is expressly enforceable by the owner or tenant of land other than the qualifying land.

Section 14: Conversion by nomination: registration

66. Subsection (1) provides for dual registration of the notice against both the burdened and the benefited property. Under subsection (2), there is a choice in both cases of registering against the title of the owner or (where applicable) the title of the tenant.

67. Subsection (3) provides that the notice must be sworn or affirmed before a notary public. In the normal case this must be done personally but some exceptions are set out in subsection (4). Subsection (4)(b) must be read with Schedule 2 to the Requirements of Writing (Scotland) Act 1995, which identifies who may sign on behalf of companies and other juristic persons.

Section 15: Conversion by nomination: effect

68. This section converts the qualifying condition into a real burden on the appointed day provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable by the entitled person or a successor of that person.

Section 16: Conversion by agreement

69. This section allows the “entitled person” (as defined in section 12(4)) to enter into an agreement with the tenant of the qualifying lease for the purpose of converting a qualifying condition into a real burden in favour of neighbouring land. The entitled person is usually the landlord (of the qualifying lease or a superior lease) but in some circumstances is a neighbour. An attempt to reach agreement is a prerequisite to an application under section 20 for an order from the Lands Tribunal dispensing with the need for any of the conversion conditions set out in section 13(4) to be satisfied.

70. Subsection (1) requires a notice to be served on the tenant under the qualifying lease as a preliminary to the agreement.

71. Subsections (2) and (3) determine what land may be nominated as a benefited property.

72. Subsection (4) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (f)) is made in section 34.

73. Subsection (5) allows the parties to the agreement to modify the terms of the qualifying condition or any counter-obligation.

74. Subsection (6) regulates the form and content of the agreement.

75. Subsection (7) provides that this section is subject to section 36, which lays down further provision for notices and agreements.

Section 17: Conversion by agreement: registration

76. Subsection (1) provides for dual registration of the agreement against both the burdened and the benefited property. Under subsection (2), there is a choice in both cases of registering against the title of the owner or (where applicable) the title of the tenant.

Section 18: Conversion by agreement: effect

77. This section converts the qualifying condition into a real burden on the appointed day if the requirements have been met and immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable by the entitled person or a successor of that person.

Section 19: Conversion by agreement: title not completed

78. This section provides the method for deduction of title in cases where under the general law deduction of title would be required.

Section 20: Lands Tribunal order

79. This section allows an “entitled person” (as defined in section 12(4)) to apply to the Lands Tribunal for an order dispensing with the need to satisfy any of the conversion conditions set out in section 13(4). The entitled person is usually the landlord (of the qualifying lease or a superior lease) but in some circumstances is a neighbour.

80. Subsection (3) prevents an application being made unless there has first been an attempt to reach agreement under section 16.
81. Subsection (4) requires the application to be made within a year of the section coming into force. The application has also to include a description of the attempt to reach agreement.

82. Subsection (5) provides that the Lands Tribunal can make an order if it is satisfied that there would be material detriment to the value or enjoyment of the entitled person’s ownership (taking such person to have ownership) of the prospective benefited property were the qualifying condition in question to be extinguished. If an order is granted, the entitled person can then proceed to register a notice under section 13 converting the qualifying condition into a real burden.

83. Subsection (6) provides that the decision of the Lands Tribunal is final.

84. Subsection (7) makes provision for expenses in the case of a person opposing an application.

Section 21: Dealing with application under section 20

85. This section makes provision for the procedure in the Lands Tribunal in respect of applications under section 20. The Scottish Ministers also already have powers to make rules in respect of Lands Tribunal procedures under section 3 of the Lands Tribunal Act 1949.

Section 22: Amendment of Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992

86. This section makes consequential amendments to the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992. It is ancillary to section 20(6) which provides that there is no appeal from the decision of the Lands Tribunal on an application under section 20.

Section 23: Conversion to personal pre-emption or redemption burden

87. This section allows a person with the right to enforce a qualifying condition which confers a right of pre-emption or redemption to convert that condition into a real burden to be known as a personal pre-emption burden or a personal redemption burden.

88. The entitled person is usually the landlord (of the qualifying lease or a superior lease) but in some circumstances is a neighbour.

89. Subsection (1) provides for the execution and registration of a notice. This must be done by the person with the right to enforce the qualifying condition. All pro indiviso landlords, for example, have to be parties to the notice.

90. Subsection (2) identifies the type of qualifying condition which may be converted.

91. Subsection (3) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (e)) is made in section 34.

92. Subsection (4) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.
93. Subsection (5) provides that the notice must be sworn or affirmed before a notary public. In the normal case this must be done personally but some exceptions are set out in subsection (6).

94. Subsection (6)(b) must be read with Schedule 2 to the Requirements of Writing (Scotland) Act 1995, which identifies who may sign on behalf of companies and other juristic persons.

95. Subsection (7) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into a personal pre-emption burden or a personal redemption burden in favour of the person with the right to enforce (or that person’s successor) provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable.

96. Subsection (8) makes clear that the benefit of the burden in question can be assigned or otherwise transferred to any person. Subsection (9) lays down that the assignation is completed by registration.

97. Subsection (11) provides the method for deduction of title in cases where under the general law deduction of title would be required.

98. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices.

Section 24: Conversion to economic development burden

99. This section allows a local authority, or the Scottish Ministers, with the right to enforce a qualifying condition which was imposed for the purpose of promoting economic development to convert that condition into an economic development burden in their favour. An economic development burden may lay down how the property should be used or may require money to be paid to the local authority or the Scottish Ministers. The relevant provision in the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 is section 45.

100. Subsection (1) provides for the execution and registration of a notice.

101. Subsection (2) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (f)) is made in section 34.

102. Subsection (3) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.

103. Subsection (4) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into an economic development burden in favour of the local authority or the Scottish Ministers provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable.

104. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices.
Section 25: Conversion to health care burden

105. This section allows the Scottish Ministers when they have the right to enforce a qualifying condition which was imposed for the purpose of promoting the provision of facilities for health care to convert that condition into a health care burden in their favour.

106. Subsection (1) provides for the execution and registration of a notice.

107. Subsection (2) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (e)) is made in section 34.

108. Subsection (3) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.

109. Subsection (4) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into a health care burden in favour of the Scottish Ministers provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable.

110. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices.

Section 26: Conversion to climate change burden

111. This section allows a public body or trust (defined in subsection (5)) or the Scottish Ministers with the right to enforce a qualifying condition which was imposed for the purpose of reducing greenhouse gas emissions (defined in subsection (5)) to convert that condition into a climate change burden in their favour. Climate change burdens were introduced by the Climate Change (Scotland) Act 2009. Section 68 of the 2009 Act inserted section 46A into the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

112. Subsection (2) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (f)) is made in section 34.

113. Subsection (3) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.

114. Subsection (4) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into a climate change burden in favour of the public body, trust or the Scottish Ministers provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable.

115. Subsection (5) lays down various definitions. The definitions of “emissions” and “greenhouse gas” are taken from the Climate Change (Scotland) Act 2009. The definition of “public body” is taken from an order made by the Scottish Ministers under section 38(4) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

116. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices.
Section 27: Conversion to conservation burden: rule one

117. This section allows a conservation body, or the Scottish Ministers, with the right to enforce a qualifying condition which promotes conservation to convert that condition into a conservation burden in their favour. “Conservation burden” is defined in section 38(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003. “Conservation body” is defined in section 122(1) of the 2003 Act and refers to any body prescribed by an order made by the Scottish Ministers under section 38(4) of the 2003 Act.

118. Subsection (1) provides for the execution and registration of a notice.

119. Subsection (2) identifies the type of qualifying condition which may be converted. This mirrors the definition of conservation burden in section 38(1) of the 2003 Act.

120. Subsection (3) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations (paragraph (f)) is made in section 34.

121. Subsection (4) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.

122. Subsection (5) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into a conservation burden for the benefit of the public in favour of the conservation body or the Scottish Ministers provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable.

123. Subsection (6) qualifies the reference in subsection (5) to a conservation body or the Scottish Ministers so as to include successors provided that they are either a conservation body or the Scottish Ministers. In any other case the notice falls and the condition is extinguished on the appointed day.

124. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices.

Section 28: Conversion to conservation burden: rule two

125. This section allows a person with the right to enforce a qualifying condition which promotes conservation to convert that condition into a conservation burden in favour of a conservation body or the Scottish Ministers. The entitled person is usually the landlord (of the qualifying lease or a superior lease) but in some circumstances is a neighbour. “Conservation burden” is defined in section 38(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003. “Conservation body” is defined in section 122(1) of the 2003 Act and refers to any body prescribed by an order made by the Scottish Ministers under section 38(4) of the 2003 Act.

126. Subsection (1) provides for the execution and registration of a notice. This must be done by the person with the right to enforce the qualifying condition. All pro indiviso landlords, for example, have to be parties to the notice.
127. Subsection (2) requires the consent of the nominee to be obtained before a copy of the notice is sent to the tenant under the qualifying lease under section 72(2) or in other cases before the notice is executed. The nominee is required to sign the notice by way of indicating consent.

128. Subsection (3) sets out the content of the notice. Further provision as to counter-obligations is made in section 34.

129. Subsection (4) provides for registration of the notice against the burdened property. Registration can be against either the title of the owner or the title of the tenant.

130. Subsection (5) converts the qualifying condition on the appointed day into a conservation burden for the benefit of the public in favour of the nominated conservation body or Scottish Ministers provided that the requirements of the section have been complied with and that immediately before the appointed day the qualifying condition is still enforceable by the person with the right to enforce or that person’s successor.

131. The section is subject to section 36, which makes further provision in relation to notices, and section 72, which deals with service of notices. The adjustment to section 36(3)(b) makes clear that a discharge of a section 28 notice also requires the consent of the nominated person.

Other real burdens

Section 29: Conversion to facility or service burden

132. Subsection (1) provides for the automatic conversion of qualifying conditions concerned with the maintenance, management, reinstatement or use of facilities into facility burdens. Typical examples of facilities are given in subsection (3). “Facility burden” is defined in section 122(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

133. Obligations to maintain or reinstate which have been taken over by a local or other public authority are excluded (see section 33).

134. Subsection (2) provides for the automatic conversion of qualifying conditions concerned with the provision of services to other land into service burdens. “Service burden” is defined in section 122(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

Section 30: Conversion to manager burden

135. This section provides for the automatic conversion of a qualifying condition which confers a power of management over a group of related properties into a real burden known as a manager burden. “Manager burden” is defined in section 63(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003. Such burdens are time limited, usually to five years from creation (section 63(4) to (7) of the 2003 Act), which in the case of converted conditions is the date of registration of the qualifying lease or other constitutive deed.

136. Subsections (3) and (4) provide that whether properties are related depends on the circumstances of each case and gives a list of indicators. They are modelled on section 66(1) of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.
Section 31: Conversion where common scheme affects related properties

137. This section applies to qualifying conditions the regime provided by section 53 of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 for real burdens. It draws on concepts of “common scheme” and “related properties”, used in the 2003 Act. Essentially, qualifying conditions will be imposed under a common scheme insofar as they apply identical or equivalent conditions to each property.

138. The effect of subsection (1) is to convert automatically qualifying conditions which meet the criteria into real burdens in respect of which each property covered by the scheme will be both a benefited and a burdened property. The burdens created will be community burdens. Part 2 of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 provides for community burdens and section 25 of the 2003 Act defines “community burdens”.

139. Subsections (2) and (3) provide that whether properties are related depends on the circumstances of each case and gives a list of indicators. A typical example would be flats in the same tenement.

140. Subsection (4) prevents rights of pre-emption, redemption or reversion being conferred by virtue of this section.

Section 32: Conversion where expressly enforceable by certain third parties

141. Sometimes the lease makes clear that, in addition to the landlord, the conditions (or some of them) are to be enforceable by neighbours, i.e. by the owners or tenants of other land. Without express provision the rights fall with the conditions themselves. This section therefore provides for the conversion of such conditions into real burdens.

Exclusions from conversion

Section 33: Qualifying condition where obligation assumed by public authority

142. This section provides that the automatic conversion of qualifying conditions involving roads, sewerage or other facilities into facility or service burdens (section 29) does not extend to obligations which have been taken over by a local or other public authority. Obligations of this kind are spent. The provision also applies to obligations which are part of a common scheme (section 31).

Effect of conversion on counter-obligations

Section 34: Counter-obligations on conversion

143. This section makes clear that an obligation which is the counterpart of a qualifying condition converted into a real burden also survives and is binding on the former landlord or third party enforcer or any replacement enforcer. An example might be where a tenant is under an obligation to pay for maintenance which is then to be carried out by the landlord. The section does not provide a free-standing right to enforce the counter-obligation but it makes the right to enforce the burden subject to performance of the counter-obligation.

144. Subsection (2) sets out the relevant counter-obligations.
Prescription

Section 35: Prescriptive period for converted conditions

145. This is a transitional provision. The period of negative prescription (extinction of obligation) for a leasehold condition is presently twenty years. After conversion to a real burden, the period will be five years under section 18 of the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003. The effect of this section is to make the prescriptive period for a breach of a qualifying condition that occurs before the appointed day for leasehold conversion the same as the period for a breach of a real burden that occurred before the day appointed for feudal abolition. That is to say, the prescriptive period for such a breach will be the shorter of 5 years from the appointed day or 20 years from the breach.

Notices and agreements under this Part

Section 36: Further provision for notices and agreements

146. Subsection (2) provides that the person with a right to enforce (whether landlord or third party) should not be able to preserve that right under separate heads of conversion. It should not, for example, be competent to convert a condition into a neighbour burden under section 13 and a conservation burden under section 27 or section 28. A choice has to be made but the choice is not final as subsection (3) allows an earlier agreement or notice to be discharged.

147. Subsections (4) and (5) regulate the number of notices that are required. Where the same qualifying condition enforceable by the same person affects more than one qualifying lease, a separate notice must be prepared for each lease but the same notice (or agreement) can be used for more than one condition.

148. Subsection (6) makes clear that there is no requirement of registration where the prospective benefited property is outwith Scotland.

PART 3: COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF LANDLORD’S RIGHTS

Overview of Part 3 of the Bill

149. Part 3 sets out a scheme under which the landlord of a lease converting to ownership under Part 1 may claim compensation. A landlord may claim a general payment for the loss of rights. This is termed a compensatory payment and is based on the capitalised value of the rent (see sections 37 to 47).

150. Exceptionally a compensatory payment may not be enough. In certain cases, therefore, a landlord may claim a further payment, termed an “additional payment”, for the loss of the right in question (see sections 48 to 53).

151. Part 3 also contains provisions in relation to the landlord serving a preliminary notice where a claim is likely to exceed £500 (see section 54); the tenant making payments by instalments when the amount due is £50 or more (see section 55) and the disclosure of information (see sections 56 and 57).
Section 37: Requiring compensatory payment

152. To claim a compensatory payment, the former landlord must serve on the former tenant a notice in the prescribed form within 2 years of the appointed day, accompanied by a copy of a prescribed explanatory note (subsection (4)).

153. The sum due by the tenant is calculated in accordance with section 40 and is an ordinary unsecured debt. The claim is against the immediate former tenant of the person making the claim.

154. If the sum being claimed is £50 or more, an instalment document has to be served along with the notice (subsection (5)). This gives the tenant the option of paying by instalments in accordance with the scheme set out in section 55. If an instalment document is not served the notice has no effect.

155. Subsection (6) provides that the section is subject to section 54 the effect of which is to restrict the amount of compensatory payment to no more than £500 unless a preliminary notice has been served.

Section 38: Making compensatory payment

156. If the landlord has followed the notice procedure correctly, the former tenant must, unless entitled to pay by instalments (see sections 37(5) and 55), make the compensatory payment within 56 calendar days beginning with the day on which notice is served.

Section 39: Key terms for purposes of calculation

157. This section defines certain terms for the purposes of calculating the compensatory payment.

Section 40: Calculation of the compensatory payment

158. This section sets out how the compensatory payment by tenants to landlords is to be calculated. The method of calculation is based on the compensation scheme under the Abolition of Feudal Tenure etc. (Scotland) Act 2000, which abolished feudal tenure. The compensation is designed to deliver the same economic benefit to the landlord as the ongoing income from rent paid under the ultra-long lease being converted to ownership. Additional payments may also be due – see sections 48 to 53).

159. The compensatory payment is first calculated by working out the Annual Income (AI). As outlined in Step 1 in section 40, the AI is calculated by determining the annual rent, in accordance with section 41, and then, as outlined in Step 3, by adding any notional annual renewal premium (NARP) calculated under section 44. Under Step 2 and section 44, the NARP is any renewal premium of £100 or less, divided by the renewal period (RP) (see section 44). Renewal premiums of over £100 may give rise to a separate claim for an additional payment – see section 49(1)(d).
160. To give an example, if the annual rent is £2.50 and the renewal premium is £2.50, with a renewal period of 99 years, the AI is £2.50 plus 3p (£2.50 divided by 99, rounded to the nearest penny). Therefore, the AI is £2.53.

161. The next step, as outlined in Step 4, is to calculate the sum of money which would, if invested in 2.5% Consolidated Stock, produce an annual sum equal to AI. This sum is the compensatory payment.

162. The price of Consolidated Stock varies. At 3 September 2010, the price was £57.81 (to buy £100 of nominal stock yielding 2.5% interest). Therefore, the compensatory payment is £57.81 (price of stock yielding £2.50 a year) multiplied by £2.53 (AI) divided by £2.50 (annual sum produced by investing £57.81 in 2.5% consolidated stock). This gives a compensatory payment of £58.50.

163. To give another example, if the annual rent is £20 and there is no NARP, the compensatory payment is £57.81 (price of stock) multiplied by £20 (AI) divided by £2.50 (annual income from the stock). This gives a figure of £462.48.

164. Another way of carrying out the calculation is to use a variable multiplier (variable as the price of 2.5% Consolidated Stock varies). Therefore, if the price of 2.5% Consolidated Stock is £57.81, the variable multiplier, to one decimal point, is 23.124 (£57.81 divided by £2.50). This variable multiplier can then be multiplied by the AI to produce the compensatory payment.

Section 41: Determination of the annual rent

165. This section lays down how the annual rent should be determined for the purposes of calculating the compensatory payment. In some cases, rent may be paid on a cumulo basis. Cumulo rent is defined in section 59 and refers to a single rent payable in relation to two or more leases. In these cases, the annual rent is allocated under section 42.

166. In other cases, a lease may be “partially continuing” (a definition of “partially continuing lease” is laid down in section 39). In these cases, the annual rent is allocated under section 43.

167. Where the lease does not involve cumulo rents or partially continuing leases, the annual rent is as laid down in the lease, excluding any non-monetary payments.

168. Subsection (2) provides that any rent expressed in non-monetary terms is to be excluded from the calculation of the compensatory payment. Provision is made for non-monetary rents to be the basis of a claim for an additional payment – see section 49(1)(a).

Section 42: Allocation of cumulo rent

169. Where the annual rent payable under the lease is a cumulo rent, as defined in section 59, that rent requires to be allocated before the compensatory payment can be calculated under section 40. This section sets out the rules for doing so.

170. Subsection (2) directs the landlord to allocate the cumulo rent between the leases within 2 years of the appointed day. The rent is to be allocated between all of the leases in respect of which cumulo rent was payable. The allocation must be in such proportions as are reasonable in the circumstances (subsection (3)).

171 Subsection (4) creates a presumption that the landlord’s allocation is reasonable if it accords with an apportionment made before the appointed day. This presumption is relevant only in cases where an apportionment was made without the consent of the landlord: for example, where the rent is collected by a property manager or other third party and remitted to the landlord in a single sum. To assist the landlord, section 56 requires any third party collector to disclose to the landlord information about the tenants from whom the rent has been collected and the amount collected.

172 Under subsection (5), the sum allocated to a lease that continues after the appointed day is the annual rent payable under that lease from the appointed day, subject to any allocation under section 43 in relation to partially continuing leases.

Section 43: Partially continuing leases: allocation of rent

173 Section 43 is concerned with a lease that is partly extinguished and partly continues on and after the appointed day. “Partially continuing lease” is defined in section 39. A lease is a partially continuing lease if, for example, there is a partial sublease further down the leasehold chain which is exempt from conversion under Part 4. Instead of being extinguished in full, the higher lease continues in force in relation to the subjects of the exempt lease.

174 Subsection (1) directs the landlord of a partially continuing lease to allocate the annual rent payable under the lease between the continuing part and the extinguished part (the “continuing subjects” and the “converted subjects”). Subsection (2)(b) provides that if the rent payable under the lease was a cumulo rent, as defined in section 59, the landlord must allocate the cumulo rent between the relevant leases, as outlined in section 42, before carrying out the allocation under this section.

175 Under subsection (4), the sum allocated to the continuing part of the lease is the annual rent payable under that lease from the appointed day.

Section 44: Calculation of notional annual renewal premium

176 This section applies if a renewal premium of £100 or less is payable under the lease and it is necessary to include the renewal or more than one renewal in order to meet the durational requirements for conversion.

177 Subsection (2) directs the former landlord to divide the amount of the renewal premium by the number of years between each renewal. This gives a sum which represents the “notional annual renewal premium” or NARP. The NARP is added to the annual rent payable under the lease in order to calculate compensation under section 40.

178 Subsection (3) provides that that where there is a partially continuing lease, the renewal premium for leases converting to ownership is as allocated under section 46. Where there is not a partially continuing lease but there is a cumulo renewal premium, the renewal premium is as allocated under section 45. And in all other cases the renewal premium is the amount payable under the lease.
179. If a renewal premium of more than £100 is payable, the landlord can claim compensation under the additional payments regime set out in sections 48 to 53.

Section 45: Allocation of cumulo renewal premium

180. Where a cumulo renewal premium (as defined in section 59) is payable under more than one lease, a landlord, for the purposes of claiming a compensatory payment or an additional payment for the loss of the renewal premium, has first to allocate the premium.

181. If the premium allocated is more than £100, compensation can only be claimed under section 49(1)(d) as an additional payment.

182. The allocation must be in such proportions as are reasonable in the circumstances (subsection (3)). Subsection (4) creates a presumption that an allocation of a premium is reasonable if it accords with an apportionment effective immediately before the appointed day or, if there is no such apportionment, it follows any allocation of cumulo rent made under section 42.

183. Under subsection (5), the renewal premium allocated to a lease that continues after the appointed day is the renewal premium payable under that lease from the appointed day, subject to any allocation under section 46 in relation to partially continuing leases.

Section 46: Partially continuing leases: allocation of renewal premium

184. Where a renewal premium (as defined in section 39) is payable under a partially continuing lease, a landlord, for the purposes of claiming a compensatory payment or an additional payment for the loss of the renewal premium, must first allocate the premium between the converted subjects and the continuing subjects.

185. Subsection (3) provides that if the renewal premium payable under the lease is a cumulo renewal premium, as defined in section 59, the landlord must allocate the cumulo renewal premium between the relevant leases, as outlined in section 45, before carrying out the allocation under this section.

186. If the premium allocated is more than £100, compensation can only be claimed under section 49(1)(d) as an additional payment.

187. The allocation must be in such proportions as are reasonable in the circumstances (subsection (4)). Subsection (5) creates a presumption that an allocation of a premium is reasonable if it follows an allocation of rent under section 43.

188. Under subsection (6), the sum allocated to the continuing part of the lease is the renewal premium payable under the lease from the appointed day.

Section 47: Allocation disputed or not made: reference to Land Tribunal

189. Under subsection (1), the tenant under a continuing lease or the continuing part of a lease can apply to the Lands Tribunal for Scotland to:-
These documents relate to the Long Leases (Scotland) Bill (SP Bill 61) as introduced in the Scottish Parliament on 10 November 2010

- challenge the allocation of cumulo rent under section 42;
- challenge the allocation of cumulo renewal premium under section 45;
- challenge the allocation of rent in relation to partially continuing leases under section 43;
- challenge the allocation of renewal premium in relation to partially continuing leases under section 46;
- seek the allocation of cumulo rent or cumulo renewal premium, if the landlord has failed to carry out an allocation within two years from the appointed day; and
- seek the allocation of rent or renewal premium, where a lease is partially continuing between the converted subjects and the continuing subjects, where the landlord has failed to do so within 2 years of the appointed day.

190. Where the landlord has made an allocation which is disputed, any application by the tenant to the Lands Tribunal must be made within 56 calendar days, beginning with the day on which notice of the allocation was given to the tenant. Where no allocation is made, the tenant may apply to the Tribunal at any time after the expiry of the two year period running from the appointed day.

191. This section does not give a former tenant of a lease, or part of a lease, extinguished on the appointed day, a right to challenge the amount of compensation claimed by the former landlord where an allocation has been made. However, it is a defence to a claim for compensation that the allocation was unreasonable.

Additional payment

Section 48: Claiming additional payment

192. To claim an additional payment for the loss of a right, the former landlord must serve a notice in the prescribed form on the former tenant within two years of the appointed day (subsections (2) and (4)). The amount claimed is calculated in accordance with section 50. The claim is against the immediate former tenant of the person making the claim except in the circumstances set out in subsection (3).

193. Under subsection (3), where the right lost by the former landlord of a superior lease is one specified in section 49(1)(e) to (g), the former landlord is directed to serve the notice claiming an additional payment on the former tenant of the qualifying lease rather than on the former tenant of the superior lease.

194. Subsection (4) sets out various requirements for the form and content of the notice. The notice must be accompanied by a copy of the explanatory note.

195. Under subsection (5), if the sum being claimed is £50 or more an instalment document has to be served along with the notice. This gives the tenant the option of paying by instalments in accordance with the scheme set out in section 55. If an instalment document is not served the notice has no effect.

196. Subsection (6) provides that the section is subject to section 54 the effect of which, in the case of a qualifying lease, is to restrict the maximum amount that can be claimed by way of additional payment to £500 unless a preliminary notice has been served.
Section 49: Extinguished rights

197. This section identifies the rights the loss of which may found a claim for an additional payment. In the notice making the claim it will be for the landlord to nominate, and to justify, the particular ground of claim (see section 48(5)).

198. Subsection (1)(a) refers to a right to a non-monetary rent. Paragraph 6.29 of the Scottish Law Commission report indicated that in around 1% of the leases it surveyed it found non-monetary rents such as six fat hens, oat farm meal and the services of a labourer for three days to work on the roads in a town.

199. Subsection (1)(b) refers to a right to have the rent reviewed or increased. Paragraph 6.30 of the Scottish Law Commission report indicated that provision for rent reviews was rare in ultra-long leases but the possibility should be acknowledged. Paragraph 6.31 of the report indicated that it is possible for rent to increase by way of a fixed formula rather than by virtue of a review.

200. Subsection (1)(c) refers to a right to a rent to the extent that the amount payable is variable from year to year. This might, for example, be relevant where rent is based on the turnover of a business.

201. Subsection (1)(d) refers to a right to receive a renewal premium of more than £100 (rights to receive lesser amounts can be recovered under the compensatory payment regime (see sections 40 and 44)).

202. Subsection (1)(e) refers to a landlord’s right of reversion, so long as the lease would expire no later than 200 years after the appointed day. Reversionary rights occasionally may have a value over and above the income stream from rent. Rights falling into this category are to be valued in accordance with section 50(3) and (4).

203. Subsection (1)(f) refers to a right to bring a lease to an end before its normal expiry. The right has to be within the full control of the landlord and exercisable within 200 years of the appointed day. A break clause exercisable at regular intervals or a right of redemption or resumption exercisable at the landlord's discretion would be included but not a right to terminate on breach. A right (such as a right of redemption) which is converted into a real burden under sections 15,18 or 23 is excluded.

204. Subsection (1)(f) refers to a right to development value provided that the right has not been converted into a real burden under sections 15 or 18. “Development value” is defined in subsection (2) as is the expression “right to development value”.

Section 50: calculating additional payment

205. This section sets out some general and some specific rules for determining the amount of an additional payment. Subsection (2) provides that the right is to be valued as at the appointed day.

206. Subsections (3) and (4) contain specific rules relating to the valuation of a landlord’s reversionary interest in a claim under section 49(1)(e). In particular, the value is deemed to be
207. Subsections (5) to (7) provide that any obligations on the landlord which are extinguished by conversion have to be taken into account (but not insofar as such obligations are preserved as a counter obligation to a real burden) as has any other entitlement of the landlord to recover in respect of the loss. “Any other entitlement” refers primarily to the compensatory payment calculated under section 40.

208. Subsection (8) caps a claim for the loss of the right to development value. In some cases, ultra-long leases may have been granted cheaply on the basis that the property was used for some limited purpose, such as the building of a church or a community hall.

209. Paragraph 6.45 of the Scottish Law Commission report said that if any leasehold conditions preserving development value were discharged by the Lands Tribunal, any compensation would be limited to a sum to make up for the effect the leasehold condition produced in reducing the consideration paid for the interest in the property. No account is taken of inflation. In other words, the loss of the right to development value is limited to the reduction in the price paid for the interest in the property at the time.

Section 51: Additional payment: former tenant agrees

210. This section applies where, following service of an additional payment notice under section 48, the former tenant agrees to make the payment specified in the notice. Unless the tenant is entitled to pay by instalments (see section 55), payment must be made to the former landlord within 56 calendar days beginning with the day on which the notice was served on the former tenant.

211. There may be cases where the former tenant does agree to pay the amount specified in the notice. In these cases, the former tenant and the former landlord may agree that a different amount should be paid (see section 52) or where agreement cannot be reached, the matter may be referred to the Lands Tribunal (see section 53).

Section 52: Additional payment: amount mutually agreed

212. Following service of an additional payment notice under section 48, the former landlord and former tenant may agree that a different amount be paid. This section regulates the procedure to be followed.

213. Subsection (2) requires the former landlord to serve a further notice in the prescribed form on the former tenant specifying the agreed amount and requesting payment. The notice must be served within 5 years of the appointed day to be valid. If a notice is not served, the obligation to pay does not arise and the landlord loses the right to collect the payment.

214. Subsection (3) sets out requirements for the form and content of the notice. The notice must be accompanied by a copy of the explanatory note.
215. If the agreed sum is £50 or more, subsection (4) requires that an instalment document is served along with the notice. This gives the tenant the option of paying by instalments in accordance with the scheme set out in section 55. If an instalment document is not served the notice has no effect.

216. Unless entitled to pay by instalments, subsection (5) requires the former tenant to make payment to the former landlord within 28 calendar days, beginning with the day on which the notice is served.

Section 53: Claim for additional payment: reference to Lands Tribunal

217. This section applies in cases where no agreement has been reached under section 51 or section 52.

218. Subsection (1) gives both the former tenant and the former landlord the right to refer any matter relating to a claim for an additional payment to the Lands Tribunal.

219. Subsection (2) gives the Lands Tribunal a wide discretion to determine the matter and make such order as it thinks fit.

220. Subsection (3) requires the Lands Tribunal to provide the former tenant with the option of paying by instalments in accordance with the statutory instalment scheme if the additional payment is fixed at £50 or more. This subsection makes certain amendments to the instalment scheme to take account of the fact that no instalment document will be served on the former tenant in such circumstances.

221. Subsection (4) provides that all references to the Lands Tribunal must be made within 5 years of the appointed day.

Section 54: Claims in excess of £500: preliminary notice

222. A landlord who intends to claim a sum which is likely to exceed £500 by way of compensatory or additional payment from the tenant of the qualifying lease has to serve a preliminary notice. This notice must be served no later than six months before the appointed day on the person who is registered at that time as the tenant. Separate notices have to be served in respect of each type of payment. If a notice is not served the amount of compensatory or additional payment that can be claimed is capped at £500.

Section 55: Making payments by instalments

223. Where the compensatory payment or additional payment is £50 or more the former landlord has to serve an instalment document along with the relevant notice. This section sets out the rules of the instalment scheme.

224. Subsection (2) provides that the instalment document must be completed in the prescribed form and accompanied by a copy of the explanatory note.

225. Subsection (3) requires that to obtain the option to pay by instalments, the former tenant has to sign, date and return the instalment document along with payment of a 10% surcharge.
The tenant has to do this within the period allowed for payment of the compensatory or additional payment, which is either 56 or 28 calendar days.

226. Subsection (4) provides that the option of paying by instalments is lost by the former tenant of a qualifying lease in the event of a sale of the whole or part of the land now owned.

227. Subsections (6) and (7) set out the details of the instalment scheme. Whitsunday is 28 May and Martinmas is 28 November.

228. Subsection (8) provides for immediate payment of the balance if an instalment is unpaid for forty-two calendar days.

229. Subsection (9) makes clear that in other cases the balance can be repaid at any time.

Section 56: Collecting third party to disclose information

230. This section requires any third party collector of rent (e.g. where rent has been on a cumulo basis) to disclose to the landlord information about the tenants from whom the rent has been collected and, where the rent remitted is part of a cumulo rent, the amount so collected, so far as is practicable.

Section 57: Duty to disclose identity etc. of former tenant

231. This section requires a person on whom a notice was mistakenly served claiming a compensatory or additional payment to disclose the name and address of the former tenant or, failing that, such other information as will enable the former tenant to be traced.

Section 58: Prescription of requirement to make payment

232. This section provides that the obligation to pay the compensatory or additional payment prescribes (i.e. extinguishes) after 5 years. Prescription starts to run from the date the obligation to pay arises.

Section 59: Cumulo rent and cumulo renewal premium

233. This section defines cumulo rent as a single rent payable under two or more leases and cumulo renewal premium as a single renewal premium payable in relation to two or more leases.

234. Subsection (2) qualifies the definitions of cumulo rent and cumulo renewal premium by providing that where a rent or premium has been apportioned between the leases before the appointed day with the agreement express or implied agreement of the parties the rent or premium apportioned is to be the rent or premium for that lease.

235. The definition of cumulo renewal premium is qualified further by subsections (3) and (4). They provide that where a cumulo rent has been apportioned with the agreement of the parties but not the cumulo premium, the premium is allocated between the leases in the same proportions as the rent.
Section 60: Interpretation of Part 3

236. Subsection (1) defines former landlord and former tenant for the purposes of Part 3. It has to be read alongside the definition of landlord and tenant in section 77(1). The definitions include a person who has right to the interest but who has not completed title. If more than one person comes within the definition the latest such person is treated as the landlord or the tenant.

237. Subsection (2) provides where there are co-tenants their liability is joint and several as regards the compensatory or additional payment in a question with the former landlord and also among themselves. It also makes clear that for the purposes of Part 3 such tenants are to be treated as a single tenant except for the provisions regarding service of a notice.

PART 4: EXEMPTION FROM CONVERSION AND CONTINUING LEASES

Overview of Part 4 of the Bill

238. This Part contains provisions on the tenant opting out of converting a lease to ownership by exempting the lease and recalling the exemption. It also contains provisions on the registration of unregistered leases. These are then treated as leases which are exempt from conversion but with the tenant having the option of recalling this exemption.

Exempt leases

Section 61: Exempt leases

239. This section sets out the consequences of a lease being an exempt lease when the appointed day arrives. The effect is to suspend the process of conversion in relation to that lease and any superior lease. Existing landlord-tenant relationships continue in force as before. “Exempt leases” are defined by reference to sections 62 to 64.

Types of exempt leases

Section 62: Exemption of qualifying lease by registration of notice

240. This section allows the tenant of a qualifying lease to opt out of conversion so that it becomes an “exempt lease”. The section requires the tenant to register a notice of exemption at least two months before the appointed day.

Section 63: Certain leases registered near or after the appointed day

241. An unregistered lease which otherwise satisfies the requirements for conversion is not a qualifying lease under section 1. This section makes provision for the situation where the lease is subsequently registered.

242. An unregistered lease which is first registered in the year before the appointed day or at any time thereafter is treated as an exempt lease. This enables the lease to be converted into ownership by registering a recall notice under section 65. This procedure gives the landlord of that lease notification of conversion of the lease to ownership and the opportunity to register notices converting conditions into real burdens etc. Where first registration of the lease takes place in the year before the appointed day, section 61 suspends the process of conversion.
Section 64: Subleases of exempt leases

243. The tenant under an exempt lease may grant a sublease which fulfils the criteria for conversion. This section provides that on registration the sublease is to be treated as an exempt lease. The tenant may then register a recall notice.

Section 65: Recall of exemption

244. This section allows the tenant under an exempt lease to register a recall notice. This may be done before or after the appointed day.

245. Under subsection (2), on registration of a recall notice the exempt lease ceases to be an exempt lease. It then becomes eligible for conversion so long as it meets the general criteria for conversion. In particular, the unexpired duration of the lease must at the appointed day (see subsection (3)) be more than 100 years.

246. Subsection (3) prescribes the appointed day where the notice of recall is registered in the six months before or on or at any time after the standard appointed day laid down in section 67. The effect of deferring the appointed day is to give a landlord of the qualifying lease or any superior lease a period of six months in which to consider whether to register notices converting leasehold conditions into real burdens.

247. Subsection (4) removes the requirement for the landlord to serve a preliminary notice in order to claim compensation or additional payments of more than £500. The purpose of such a notice is to invite consideration of opting out but that is no longer relevant where the decision to recall has been made.

Section 66: Exemption and recall notices: supplementary

248. This section sets out rules for the service and registration of a notice of exemption or a notice of recall.

249. Subsections (2) and (3) provide for the sending of a copy of the exemption notice or recall notice to the landlord of the qualifying or exempt lease and any landlord of a superior lease. Service can be on the person who is registered as landlord. Normally service is by post, and must precede registration. The notice must contain a statement about service, or an explanation as to why service was not reasonably practicable.

250. Subsection (4) requires the notice to be registered against the title of the tenant. This allows anyone dealing with the lease to see the position.

PART 5: GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

Overview of Part 5 of the Bill

251. This Part contains provisions on a variety of issues: the appointed day; how to determine the duration of leases; leases continuing on tacit relocation; irritancy; service of notices; registration of notices; matters that the Keeper of the Registers of Scotland is not required to determine; referring disputed notices to the Lands Tribunal; the registration of documents rejected by the Keeper when the courts or the Lands Tribunal determine that they are registrable; amendments to enactments; interpretation; ancillary provisions; subordinate legislation and commencement.
These documents relate to the Long Leases (Scotland) Bill (SP Bill 61) as introduced in the Scottish Parliament on 10 November 2010

Section 67: The appointed day

252. This section fixes the appointed day, which is the day when qualifying leases are converted into ownership. Whitsunday (28 May) and Martinmas (28 November) are chosen because they are the dates on which rent is normally payable. The period of two years between the coming into force of the section under section 70 and the appointed day enables the qualifying leases to be identified ahead of conversion. This in turn enables the statutory notices for conversion of qualifying conditions etc. to be served and registered before the appointed day.

253. The Term and Quarter Days (Scotland) Act 1990 regulates, in Scotland, the dates of Whitsunday and Martinmas (and Candlemas and Lammas).

Section 68: Determining duration of lease

254. The provision sets out a number of rules for calculating the period of a lease. The period of a lease is relevant for the purposes of working out whether a lease qualifies for conversion (section 1(3)); whether an additional payment can be claimed for the residual value of the reversionary interest (section 49(1)(e)) and how that value is to be assessed (section 50(3) and (4)); and whether an additional payment can be claimed for the loss of a right to bring a lease to an end early (section 49(1)(f)). In each case the duration of the lease is calculated in the same way.

255. Subsection (1) sets out the rules for break options (which are disregarded), for renewals (which are included), for calculating the lifetime of a tenant (for the exceptional cases where this might be relevant), and for consecutive leases (which are included). A consecutive lease is a lease which is granted during the term of the first lease on essentially the same terms and conditions as the first lease and which is to run from the moment the first lease ends.

256. Subsection (2) makes clear that a calculation of the period of a lease in accordance with the rules in subsection (1) is subject to section 67 of the Abolition of Feudal Tenure etc. (Scotland) Act 2000. That provision (with certain exceptions) prohibits the grant of a lease for more than 175 years. The provision has no relevance for break options and so subsection (2) does not apply to such options.

Section 69: Leases continuing on tacit relocation

257. This section relates to leases continuing on tacit relocation (leases continuing on a year by year basis where, for example, a renewal was due to have taken place but did not actually happen). The section provides that Part 3, on compensation, applies to such leases as does section 68, on determining the duration of the lease, as if any provision requiring the landlord to renew the lease had been complied with.

258. To give an example, some leases in Blairgowrie are for 99 years but contain provisions requiring the landlords to renew them in perpetuity for further periods of 99 years. The effect of section 69 is that where such leases have not been renewed but continue on tacit relocation, the renewal is deemed to have taken place, including conditions about further renewals. This means that the durational requirements for leases to convert to ownership are met.

Section 70: Extinction of right of irritancy in certain leases

259. This section prevents a lease of land granted for a period of more than 175 years which has an unexpired duration of more than 100 years and is not a lease of minerals from being terminated by irritancy. The lease does not have to be registered to be covered by this section. The intention is for the section to come into force on Royal Assent.

260. Irritancy is the premature termination of the lease by the landlord, when the tenant has failed to comply with one or more of the tenant’s obligations under the lease. It includes a provision in a lease which deems a failure of the tenant to comply with any provision in the lease to be a material breach of contract. Any proceedings already commenced in relation to irritancy of a lease covered by this section are deemed to be abandoned (subsection 3). However, any final decree granted is not affected (subsection 4).

Section 71: Service of notices

261. This section sets out the rules for service of a notice (and preliminary notice) in respect of a compensatory or additional payment and in respect of serving notices to enter into an agreement with a tenant for the purpose of converting a qualifying condition into a real burden in favour of neighbouring land.

262. Liability to pay any compensatory or additional payment depends on service of a notice. The date of service is the starting point for the period allowed for payment or return of the instalment document. The date of service is the date of delivery or posting. When notices are returned undelivered, provision is made for service on the Extractor of the Court of Session.

Section 72: Notices: pre-registration requirements

263. This section applies to notices which require to be submitted for registration under section 7 (sporting rights) or under sections 13 (neighbour burdens), 23 (personal pre-emption or personal redemption burdens), 24 (economic development burdens), 25 (health care burdens), 26 (climate change burdens) and 27 and 28 (conservation burdens).

264. The section provides for the sending of a copy of the notice to the tenant under the qualifying lease. Normally service is by post and must precede registration. The notice must contain a statement about service, or an explanation as to why service was not reasonably practicable.

Section 73: Keeper’s duty as regards documents

266. This section relieves the Keeper of the Registers of the need to verify certain matters which the Keeper could not reasonably be expected to check.
Section 74: Disputed notices: reference to Lands Tribunal

267. This section gives the Lands Tribunal a broad jurisdiction to resolve disputes in relation to notices. The section applies not only to notices converting conditions into real burdens under Part 2 but also to notices converting reserved sporting rights (section 7) and to exemption and recall notices (sections 62 and 65).

Section 75: Certain documents registrable despite initial rejection

268. This section allows late registration, within limits, if the initial rejection of a notice or agreement by the Keeper is judicially overturned.

269. Subsection (1) identifies the notices and agreements in question.

270. Subsection (2) provides that a notice or agreement has to be registered within 2 months of the determination by the court (defined in subsection (6) as either the Court of Session or the Sheriff Court) or the Lands Tribunal. Under subsections (3) and (4), a notice which is registered after the appointed day is given retrospective effect.

271. Subsection (5) provides for Scottish Ministers to specify a period of time within which application has to be made to the court or the Lands Tribunal. A different period may be prescribed for exempt leases. An exempt lease can be recalled at any time and so the appointed day for that lease is uncertain. In the normal case where the appointed day is certain the period that is set will depend on the progress made with applications to the court or the Lands Tribunal.

Section 76: Amendments to enactments

272. This section gives effect to the minor and consequential amendments in schedule 1.

Section 77: Interpretation

273. Subsection (1) gives the meaning of certain terms. The majority of the terms have already been discussed in the Notes to the earlier sections.

274. Under subsection (2) expressions used in the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003 are to have the same meaning unless otherwise provided. Section 122 of the 2003 Act is the interpretation provision. This technique allows a number of terms to be used without further explanation – for example, benefited property, burdened property, conservation body, conservation burden, economic development burden, enactment, facility burden, service burden, health care burden, manager burden, and notary public.

Section 78: Ancillary provision

275. This section provides ancillary order-making powers for Ministers.

Section 79: Subordinate legislation

272. This section regulates the making of subordinate legislation under the Bill.
Section 80: Short title and commencement

273. This section deals with the short title and date of commencement. Different elements of the Bill may be commenced at different times.

Schedule 1

274. This makes minor and consequential amendments to the Conveyancing and Feudal Reform (Scotland) Act 1970; the Land Registration (Scotland) Act 1979 and the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

INTRODUCTION

275. This document relates to the Long Leases (Scotland) Bill, introduced in the Scottish Parliament on 10 November 2010. It has been prepared by the Scottish Government to satisfy Rule 9.3.2 of the Parliament’s Standing Orders. It does not form part of the Bill and has not been endorsed by Parliament.

Background

276. The Long Leases (Scotland) Bill implements a report by the Scottish Law Commission (SLC). Under the Bill, ultra-long leases (let for over 175 years and with over 100 years left to run) are eligible to convert to ownership. Compensatory and additional payments are payable to landlords by tenants. Certain sporting rights can be preserved by landlords and some leasehold conditions can be converted into real burdens in the title deeds.

277. The Scottish Government consulted earlier this year on the proposed Long Leases (Scotland) Bill. This consultation included a partial Regulatory Impact Assessment. Paragraph 5 of the Explanatory Notes provides references to both the SLC Report and the Scottish Government consultation.

278. The figures below provide estimates of potential costs. In terms of margins of uncertainty, the figures assume that there are around 9,000 leases eligible for conversion and that very few tenants opt out of conversion. The Government does not have perfect knowledge on the number of ultra-long leases and so costs could go up or down, depending on how many leases convert and how many tenants opt out. Assumptions are also made on the number of notices registered: again, the number could go up or down. The costs to Registers of Scotland include costs relating to information technology (IT): future IT cost is difficult to estimate without instructing and scoping a complete business case. The amount of compensatory payment payable by tenants to landlords depends on the number of leases that convert; whether landlords bother to claim the compensatory payment (which will usually be very low) and the value of 2.5% Consolidated Stock when conversion takes place.
Costs on the Scottish Administration

Registers of Scotland

279. Conversion of registered qualifying ultra-long leases to ownership happens automatically (unless leases are exempted by the tenant).

280. There will be costs to the Keeper of the Registers of Scotland which will require to be met from Registers of Scotland’s trading fund and recouped from registration fees levied on all customers. The work the Keeper will need to carry out includes:

- Altering the status of the title sheet from leasehold to ownership.
- Updating the burdens sections of the title sheet.
- Deleting the title sheet of any intermediate tenants.

281. The administrative costs incurred by Registers of Scotland will relate to:

- redeployment and retention of skilled staff to set up systems, update existing titles and ongoing registration:
  - the creation of new practices;
  - training and customer awareness costs;
  - changes to IT systems.

282. Registers of Scotland estimates these costs at £200,000. These costs will need to be recovered by registration fees in the Land and Sasine Registers and so costs will be met by all customers and not just those benefiting from the conversion of ultra-long leases to ownership. The costs will mainly fall in the lead up to the appointed day, particularly in the six months immediately before the appointed day.

283. In addition, there will be a number of cases where applications will be made to Registers of Scotland, following the enactment of this proposed legislation. These include:

- To register a qualifying lease condition as a real burden.
- To preserve landlord’s rights to take game or fish for freshwater fish.
- To exempt an ultra-long lease from converting into ownership, if the tenant so wishes.
- To recall an exemption notice.
- To register an unregistered ultra-long lease, in order to invoke the procedures so that the ultra-long lease could be converted to ownership.

284. Registers of Scotland will charge fees in relation to the applications listed above. Registers of Scotland has consulted on potential general changes to fees.

285. At current levels of fees, we expect the fees charged by Registers of Scotland in respect of the applications listed at paragraph 283 of this Memorandum to be £30 per Land Register title sheet and/or per deed recorded in the Sasines Register.

286. We expect the number of applications to the Registers of Scotland to be low. Paragraph 8.7 of the SLC report said “it is true that a small number of those [leasehold] conditions may be converted into real burdens”. Paragraph 8.14 of the SLC Report said that the “numbers [of unregistered ultra-long leases] are likely to be very small”. If 1,000 applications are made to Registers of Scotland, this suggests a total cost to applicants of £30,000 at current fee levels. As fees are based on cost recovery for registration, additional applications would not offset setup costs.

287. In summary, the estimated cost of the conversion of leases to Registers of Scotland is £200,000. The costs to Registers of Scotland will be met by general registration fees in the Land and Sasine Registers. The generality of Register of Scotland’s customers will therefore meet the cost.

288. In addition, Registers of Scotland will also need to register notices and agreements. The cost of this registration work should be covered by fees charged for these registrations. At current fee levels, the fees charged could amount to £30,000 (based on 1,000 applications).

Legal aid budget

289. The Bill only has a minimal\(^4\) impact on the legal aid budget, as:

- The number of ultra-long leases qualifying for conversion is low (around 9,000).
- Conversion happens automatically (unless the tenant seeks exemption).
- The number of cases taken to the Lands Tribunal is expected to be very low.
- The notices which tenants and landlords may need to complete are straightforward, and any legal advice required should not be time-consuming.
- No new criminal offences are created by the Bill.

Publicity

290. The Government will work closely with key bodies (eg Registers of Scotland) to ensure that those affected by the Bill (i.e. tenants and landlords) are aware of it. The Government will raise awareness of the Bill through websites and specialist publications rather than by a formal paid publicity campaign. Therefore, any publicity costs are minimal.

Costs on local authorities

291. The Bill does not impose any new duties on local authorities and there is no specific costs to local authorities. If local authorities happen to be tenants in ultra-long leases, they are liable for compensation and additional payments to landlords in the same way as other tenants. Like other tenants, local authorities are able to opt out of conversion, if they so wished.

\(^4\) “Minimal” for the purposes of this memorandum is regarded as costs not exceeding £25,000 in total.

Costs on other bodies, individuals and businesses

Applications to the Lands Tribunal

292. In some cases, applications may be made to the Lands Tribunal for Scotland following the enactment of legislation on long leases. For example, applications to the Lands Tribunal may be made:

- By landlords seeking to convert a qualifying condition in a lease into a real burden even though the benefited property does not have a permanent building used as a place of human habitation and resort lying within 100 metres of the burdened property; the condition is not a right of pre-emption or redemption and the land is not a separate tenement in land (such as minerals or salmon fishings) and the condition was conceived for the benefit of that land. Applications to the Lands Tribunal can only be made after an attempt by the landlord to reach agreement with the tenant.
- To challenge notices on the grounds of validity.
- To challenge a real burden (converted from a qualifying condition in a lease) or to seek to vary or discharge a real burden. The procedure here is laid down in the Title Conditions (Scotland) Act 2003.
- To fix the amount of additional payment due to the landlord for extinction of rights over the land, if the landlord and tenant cannot agree the amount.

292. If applications are made to the Lands Tribunal, there are fees payable to the Tribunal and legal expenses.\(^5\)

293. However, given the small number of ultra-long leases, we expect the number of additional cases for the Lands Tribunal in relation to this proposed legislation to be few in number. The SLC noted in paragraph 4.45 of its Report that “the relatively small number of leases eligible for conversion means that applications to the Lands Tribunal should occur in small and manageable numbers”.

294. Given this, any costs arising to applicants or to the Lands Tribunal in respect of applications to the Tribunal can be regarded as minimal.

Compensatory payments payable by tenants to landlords

Incidence of ultra-long leases

295. Under the Bill, compensatory payments are payable by tenants to landlords. Compensatory payments are only payable if claimed by landlords.

\(^5\) More information on fees payable to the Tribunal can be found on their website at http://www.lands-tribunal-scotland.org.uk/fees.html
296. To produce an estimate of the total amount of compensatory payment which may be paid, it is first necessary to produce an estimate of the number of ultra-long leases which may convert to ownership under the Bill. Work was done on this for the partial Regulatory Impact Assessment included in the Government consultation and these estimates of the incidence of ultra-long leases are shown below. These estimates were not challenged by any of the respondents to the consultation.

297. The SLC Report, and a report carried out in 1951 for the Scottish Leases Committee chaired by Lord Guthrie, carried out work on and a previous study on the incidence of long leases. Appendix II to the Guthrie report noted that in 1951 there were 13,151 long leases recorded in the Register of Sasines, of which 8,744 still had over 100 years left to run.

298. The SLC, working with Registers of Scotland, carried out a survey on leases in 2000, for the counties of Ayr, Clackmannan, Lanark and Renfrew. The table below, based on paragraph 4 of Appendix C to the SLC Report, shows the number of long leases examined in each county together with a comparison of the numbers which existed in 1951:

<tr>

<td>655</td>
</tr>
<tr>

<td>2,679</td>
<td>7,101</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

299. However, the SLC indicated that it only examined 25% of the leasehold titles in Lanark and 50% of the leasehold titles in Renfrew. This means that the number of long leases in the counties is as outlined below:
These documents relate to the Long Leases (Scotland) Bill (SP Bill 61) as introduced in the Scottish Parliament on 10 November 2010

<table>
<thead>

<td>655</td>
</tr>
<tr>

<td>7,302</td>
<td>7,101</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

300. This means that in 2000, in the four counties, the number of long leases was 102.8% of the figure in 1951. Extrapolating this to Scotland as a whole suggests that there are now 13,519 long leases (102.8% of 13,151).

301. This apparent increase in registered long leases may be caused by section 2(1)(a)(v) of the Land Registration (Scotland) Act 1979 which introduced a requirement to register in the Land Register any transfer of the tenant’s interest following commencement of the Act in the relevant county.

302. However, some ultra-long leases eligible for conversion under the scheme contained in the Bill may not be covered by the figures above:

- The SLC survey did not include the Register of Sasines.
- There may be unregistered ultra-long leases which would qualify for conversion under the scheme and which may be registered should the Bill be enacted.

303. Therefore, the Scottish Government recognises that the figure of 13,519 given in paragraph 300 above could be questioned: and there may have been further changes since the SLC carried out their survey in the year 2000. However, the figure of 13,519 appears the best available and is used in subsequent calculations below.

304. Paragraph 11 of Appendix C to the SLC report noted that of the long leases they examined in the year 2000, 1,786 had an initial duration of more than 175 years, whilst the remaining 813 had a duration of 175 years or less. (Paragraph 6 of Appendix C noted that the duration of 80 leases was unknown). In percentage terms, therefore, (and excluding the leases of unknown duration), 68.7% of long leases had an initial duration of more than 175 years and 31.2% of leases had an initial duration of less than 175 years.

305. Using these percentages suggests that there are 9,287 long leases in Scotland with an initial duration of more than 175 years (68.7% of 13,519).

306. To qualify for conversion under the Bill, ultra-long leases must have at least 100 years left to run. Table 3 at paragraph 14 of Appendix C to the SLC report showed that at least 97.6% of long leases with an initial duration of more than 175 years still have more than 100 years to run. This suggests that there are 9,064 ultra-long leases (97.6% of 9,287) in Scotland eligible for conversion under the Bill. In round figures, this suggests that around 9,000 ultra-long leases are eligible for conversion under the Bill. This figure of 9,000 is used in the remainder of this Financial Memorandum.
These documents relate to the Long Leases (Scotland) Bill (SP Bill 61) as introduced in the Scottish Parliament on 10 November 2010

307. Compensatory payments are based on the rent paid. Paragraph 17 of Appendix C to the SLC Report indicated that of the ultra-long leases the SLC examined, the rent was known for around 95% (1,705) of the leases granted for an initial period of more than 175 years.

308. The table below, based on information in paragraph 17 of Appendix C to the SLC Report, shows the following rents being paid:

309. The SLC Report recommended in paragraph 6.16 that the compensatory payment for the extinction of the rights of landlord under a lease should be such sum as, if invested in two and a half per cent Consolidated Stock on the day before the appointed day, would produce an annual sum equal to the annual rent due under the lease.

310. The price of £100 nominal amount of 2.5% Consolidated Stock is £57.81 [checked on 3 September 2010]. Therefore, to redeem a rent of £2.50 you need to spend £57.81 This suggests a “multiplier” of 23.1 [£57.81 divided by £2.50, to one decimal place].

311. The table below shows the amount of compensatory payment which could be payable. This is based on the estimated number of qualifying long leases (9,000) and the information in the table above on level of rents. Leases with an annual rent of over £100 are not eligible to convert under the Bill and so for the purposes of the table below leases which fall into this category have been added to the category relating to a rental of £75. This has a small impact on the estimate of the amount payable generally, given that very few ultra-long leases have a rental of more than £100.

312. This is rounded in this Financial Memorandum to £1.7 million. This equates to an average of £190 per lease.

313. The precise amount payable depends on the value of 2.5% Consolidated Stock when conversion takes place and how many landlords claim the amounts due.

314. The SLC recommended that any “renewal premiums” (or “grassum”) payable when ultra-long leases are renewed should be taken into account when amounts due to landlords by tenants are calculated (see paragraphs 6.22 to 6.27 of their report). The SLC recommended that where the renewal premium is £100 or less, then, for the purposes of compensation, the rent should be augmented by the amount of the premium divided by the number of years occurring between each renewal. (So if the premium is £100 and the renewal period is 99 years, the rent would be deemed to be augmented by £1.01). Where the renewal premium is over £100, the figure is taken account of in relation to additional payments (see below).

315. The approach taken in Financial Memorandum is to treat as minimal any deemed augmentations of rent where the premium is £100 or less, given that the augmentation is so small.

Additional payments payable by tenants to landlords

316. As well as compensatory payments, the SLC also recommended that some additional payments should be payable in certain circumstances. This section goes through the various heads.

Non-monetary rents

317. The SLC noted in paragraph 6.29 of its report that non-monetary rents were found in around 1% of the long leases in their survey: these non-monetary payments often supplemented the monetary rent. Examples quoted by the SLC are six fat hens; four bolls\(^8\) of good and sufficient oat farm meal and the services of a labourer to work on the roads of a particular town.

⁶ This is based on the percentage split in the previous table, except that leases with a rent over £100 have been added to the category of leases with a rent of £75.

318. The additional payment due would either be based on an agreed monetary equivalent (in which case the formula for monetary rents based on the price of 2.5% Consolidated Stock would apply) or an amount fixed by order of the Lands Tribunal. Either way, as only 1% of long leases are affected, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Rent review

319. Paragraph 6.30 of the SLC Report noted that in “ultra-long leases provision for rent review is rare but probably not unknown”. Given that additional payments for rent review will be rare, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Rent increase

320. Paragraph 6.31 of the SLC report noted that rent might increase by way of a fixed formula rather than by way of rent reviews. Again, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Variable rents

321. Section 49(1)(c) of the Bill provides that additional payments may be claimed in respect of rent which is variable from year to year, such as rent based on turnover of a business. Rent based on turnover of a business is most likely in leases let on commercial terms, which are likely to be excluded from the Bill given that leases with rent of more than £100 are excluded. Therefore, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any additional payments for variable rents as minimal.

Renewal premiums exceeding £100

322. Paragraph 6.32 of the SLC Report suggested that additional payments should be payable where renewal premiums over £100 would be payable in order to make the long lease a qualifying lease. The specific example quoted in the SLC Report is of a renewal premium of £1,000 payable in 30 years time after the appointed day. However, paragraph 6.23 of the SLC report noted that “where, as usually, the renewal premium (grassum) is tied to the ground rent, it is likely to be very small - less than £1 in the example quoted above [Blairgowrie leases]. Occasionally the amount due is larger”. Given that the number of cases is likely to be small, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Residual value of reversionary interest

323. Paragraph 6.33 of the SLC Report suggested that additional payments might be paid to reflect the value a landlord might attach to land which is due to revert to the landlord no later than 200 years from the appointed day.

324. The SLC Report noted that “the numbers involved are small. Our survey found only 50 leases granted for more than 175 years and with an unexpired duration of less than 200 years -

\(^8\) A “boll” is defined in Chambers Twentieth Century Dictionary as “a measure of capacity for grain, etc., used in Scotland and the north of England – in Scotland usually = 6 imperial bushels….also a measure of weight, containing, for flour 140 lb”.

less than 3% of the total of ultra-long leases. And of these small numbers there will be many instances in which the residual interest is valueless.” Given this, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Early termination

325. Paragraph 6.34 of the SLC Report noted that a landlord’s right to terminate an ultra-long lease early may be of value and in principle should be capable of founding a claim for an additional payment. However, the SLC Report then added a number of caveats:

- The value may turn out to be negligible if, as often, the right to terminate early can only be exercised against payment.
- An additional payment should be available only for rights within the full control of the landlord.
- A right to terminate on breach should not be included, nor should a right of pre-emption.

326. Given these caveats, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Right to development value

327. Paragraphs 6.36 and 6.37 of the SLC report noted that additional payments should be payable if land was leased cheaply because of restrictions on the use of the property and the possibility remained that the restrictions could have been discharged in the Lands Tribunal, with money being paid by the tenant to the landlord.

328. The SLC Report went on to suggest, in paragraph 6.45, that there should be a ceiling on payments under this head so that compensation would be limited to “a sum to make up for any effect which the title condition produced, at the time it was created, in reducing the consideration then paid or payable for the burdened property”. The SLC also proposed that inflation be disregarded. SLC figures indicated (see paragraph 16 of Appendix C) that few long leases have been granted in recent times. Given that, and given that development value payments are based on the original value of the property, with no account taken of inflation, the approach taken in this Financial Memorandum is to treat any sums involved as minimal.

Other costs

Legal advice

329. Landlords and tenants seeking to register preservation or exemption notices may also incur costs when obtaining their legal advice. However, as the notices are straightforward and we do not expect many to be served, the costs should be minimal.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

330. The SLC considered Stamp Duty Land Tax\(^9\) (SDLT) in paragraphs 8.19 to 8.26 of its Report. It noted that there could be some debate as whether conversion of a lease to ownership was a chargeable consideration but concluded that it was. The SLC went on to recommend that long leases which convert to ownership should be treated as a land transaction which is exempt from SDLT.

331. However, there have been changes to UK legislation since the SLC wrote its report. The current versions of sections 77 and 77A of the Finance Act 2003 were inserted by section 94(2) of the Finance Act 2008. Among other matters, sections 77 and 77A provide that an acquisition of ownership where the chargeable consideration is less than £40,000 does not have to be notified for SDLT purposes. (Any obligation to pay SDLT would fall at a higher figure).

332. The number of qualifying ultra-long leases is low and the number of cases where notification will be required will be very low and we doubt if any would actually have to pay SDLT. In the light of this, we are not proposing any specific exemption from SDLT for ultra-long leases which convert to ownership and any SDLT obligations which do arise are likely to be so small they can be regarded as minimal.
