The Committee reports to the Parliament as follows—

1. At its meeting on 20 March 2012, the Committee considered the Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances (Abolition) Order 2012 [draft]. The Order is a United Kingdom Government instrument that the Scottish Parliament has been asked to consent to under section 9 of the Public Bodies Act 2011 (“the 2011 Act”). The Committee submits this report to the Rural Affairs, Climate Change and Environment Committee as part of its consideration of the Order.

2. The Scottish Government provided the Scottish Parliament with a public bodies consent memorandum (“PBCM”)\(^1\) which contains the draft Order.

Background

3. The 2011 Act provides UK Ministers with the power to make orders to improve the exercise of public functions, having regard to efficiency, effectiveness, economy and securing accountability to Ministers. Section 9(1) of the Act requires the consent of the Scottish Parliament to any order that would be within the legislative competence of the Parliament.

4. At its meeting on 20 December 2011, the Parliamentary Bureau agreed an interim arrangement for the parliamentary scrutiny of such orders, with a view to the Standards, Procedures and Public Appointments Committee considering the procedure in the longer term. In doing so, the Parliamentary Bureau recommended a variation to the Subordinate Legislation Committee’s remit to allow it to consider this instrument and any other subsequent orders brought forward under the 2011 Act. This variation was agreed to by the Parliament at its meeting on 2 February 2012.

Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances (Abolition) Order 2012 [draft]

5. The draft Order abolishes the Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances (ACHS), a non-departmental public body established under the Environmental Protection Act 1990. The UK Government considers that the specific statutory function for which it was established is no longer required, but that there remains a need for Ministers and officials to have access to scientific advice on issues relating to hazardous substances. It is therefore intended to establish a scientific committee to provide such advice, including as necessary to the Scottish Ministers.

6. The functions exercised by the ACHS in Scotland relate broadly to devolved matters. It would accordingly be open to the Scottish Parliament to legislate in respect of those devolved functions, and for this reason the consent of the Scottish Parliament is required prior to the order being made.

Subordinate Legislation Committee consideration

7. At its meeting on 20 March 2012, the Committee considered the instrument under the same grounds as instruments laid before the Parliament.

8. In considering the instrument, the Committee noted that the list of revocations in the Schedule to the draft Order does not include the reference to the Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances contained in the Schedule to the Scottish Parliament (Disqualification) Order 2010 (SI 2010/2476).

9. The Committee considers that this reference should be revoked by the draft Order. The Committee recognises, however, that the omission will not adversely affect the operation of the instrument and that there may be a suitable opportunity to remove the reference using existing powers at a future date.

Recommendation

10. As the Order contains a minor drafting error, the Committee draws the instrument to the attention of the Parliament under the general ground in Rule 10.3.1 of standing orders.
