My name is Pierluigi Miceli and I am a musician.

I am currently in education and working with other musicians to bring more music to the Glasgow's scene.

I take this chance to stress the importance that music venues have for us as our main source of income and publicity.

Supporting the growth of music venues, in size and numbers, will make easier to convert the public money invested in educating musicians in taxes from working musicians and helping producing a more thriving cultural scene on the territory.

There is plenty of documentation and case studies on how creative businesses can benefit local communities, please take in consideration the words brought to your attention by our representatives and trade unions.
